LABOR PEACE HOPES BRIGHTEN

Windsor's Guide Storm Center

—Central Press Photo.

Charles Bedaux, shown in center above, emissary for the Duke and Duchess of Windsor planning a visit to the United States., has aroused a storm of protest from the American Federation of Labor Bedaux, inventor of a work system which labor men call the "stretch-out" has offered to withdraw as the Duke's American guide but today the Duke was quoted by Bedaux as having "positively and definitely" waved aside his suggestion. The Baltimore A. F. of L. protested against "slumming parties professing to study the labor problem." Bedaux is pictured with a reporter and a friend in the above photo.

Windsors Disregard U. S. Labor Protests

Duke and Duchess Leave for U. S. Tomorrow Despite A. F. of L. Criticism of 'Slumming Party'—Bedaux Offer to Withdraw as American Guide Rejected.

PARIS—(AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor today disregarded an American labor protest against "slumming parties professing to help and study labor" and proceeded with plans to sail on the liner Bremen tomorrow for a United States tour.

A representative of the duke said no change of arrangements had been made or contemplated.

The Baltimore Federation of Labor Wednesday night "condemned" the former British monarch for planning to tour America with Charles E Bedaux as his guide, terming Bedaux an "archenemy of labor." The resolution contained the "slumming party" reference Offers to Quit.

Bedaux, an industrial engineer, is inventor of a work system which labor men call the "stretch-out." Last night in New York Bedaux said he had telephoned the duke, offering to withdraw as guide, but that Windsor had "positively and definitely waved aside" the suggestion.

The abdicated king and Wallis Warfield, formerly of Baltimore, were married at Bedaux's French chateau.

The duke and his American-born wife were invited to a luncheon today at the British embassy in Paris—the second occasion upon which Windsor had been entertained by a British diplomatic official since the December abdication. The former king was entertained at Vienna by the British minister before his wedding.

The Windsors were expected to travel to Cherbourg tomorrow in a special coach or a special compartment to board the Bremen. Plans for their final evening in Paris were not announced.

Last night the duke and duchess were honor guests at a farewell dinner given by United States Ambassador William Bullitt.

They'll Be Out But Never Down---This G. O. P. Group

Water Department Workers Who Lose Jobs on Jan. 1, Offer Bucyrus Mayor-elect 'One Complete Staff.'

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

Mansfield water department employes may be out—after the first of the year—but they're not down. They can still grin about the fact that, being Republican appointees, they'll have no jobs when a new Democratic administration goes into office.

In the spirit of fun yesterday, several employes got up a letter of congratulations to George T. Dustman, Republican mayor-elect, of Bucyrus, and former state examiner who, in that capacity, is a frequent visitor at city building. Not only did they congratulate Dustman, but they also suggested that they had available after the first of the year, one complete office force.

List 'Equipment.'

The "equipment," they said, could be inspected at the Mansfield city hall daily, until Dec. 31. However, the letter pointed out that it was to be delivered to the purchaser "C. O. D. and F. O. B. Mansfield and P. D. Q.," if that means anything.

They listed equipment on inspection as, "one secretary for the water, garbage and sewer departments, with nervous prostration, St. Vitus dance, auto-intoxication, ants in the pants and 'practically nuts'," all of which were claimed to be qualifications

The upper Aragon fighting centered on the village of Allue, south of Sabinanigo.

A government communique reported fighting along the Zaragoza-Teruel railway in the extreme southern part of Aragon.

JAPAN LANDS NEW ARMY FOR POOTUNG DRIVE

Force Disembarking South of Shanghai, to Be Used For Attack From Rear.

'PINCHING' MANEUVER

Nipponese Attempt to Drive Out Chinese From Strong River Fortifications.

SHANGHAI — (U.P.) — Japan is landing a new army on the coast southwest of Shanghai in an effort to drive the Chinese from the strongly fortified Pootung area of the city, across the Whangpoo river from the International Settlement, it was reported today.

The plan, according to reliable informants, was to land an overwhelming force just north of Chapoo, on Hangchow bay. Advance units of this new army were ashore now, it was said, and others were ready to disembark from transport.

Plan Attack from Rear.

Chapoo is about 50 miles down the coast from Shanghai. From there, the Japanese would drive rapidly northward along the main and secondary highways and attack in the rear the Chinese who for weeks have blasted the Japanese warships in the Whangpoo, and Japanese forces on the other side of the river, with strong artillery fire.

Flying squads of Chinese machine gunners have been active in the Pootung area. On occasion they go down to the water front, mount their guns in warehouses or on docks, and sweep the decks of the Japanese warships. They have repulsed all Japanese landing parties on that side of the river.

Seek to Command River.

Ousting of the Chinese from Pootung, and the expected isolation of Chinese troops from Shanghai on the other side of the river, would leave the Japanese dominant throughout the Shanghai area, and particularly would give them full command of both banks of the river.

CHAMPION SHY

6-Ft. Minnesota Farmer Wins Nation's Husking Title.

MARSHALL, Mo.—(AP)—A big, shy, Minnesota farmer, 38-year-old Ray Hanson of Bingham Lake, wore the nation's cornhusking crown today because he refused to be ruffled by 19 impatient rivals as rain slashed across his face and mud sucked at his shoes.

The handsome six-footer carried away $100 for 80 minutes of work on a soaked Missouri cornfield yesterday.

Hanson didn't shuck so much corn as many others but he shucked it cleaner and came out with 21.30 bushels.

That was far under the world mark of 41.52 bushels set by Elmer Carlson of Iowa in 1935 but was easily better than the 17.84 bushels credited to ruddy-faced Cecil Vining of Kansas. Third went to Missouri's Layton Roberts. His total, after deductions, was 17.70.

BREAK IN HOSE HALTS FIREMEN

Companies Extinguish Blaze at Home But Only After Two Delays.

Mansfield firemen extinguished a blaze that destroyed the second story of a North Main street residence, but not without difficulty, caused by two breaks in fire hose.

The fire was finally brought under control, with two companies—Central and No 2—battling it.

No. 2 company was the first on the scene. Firemen laid a line and trained on the flames, in the home of Daniel Black, 407 North Main street. Suddenly a section of fire hose broke, and a water spout, 25 feet high, rose into the air.

They turned off the water, took out the bursted section of line and replaced it They turned on the water again, and another section burst. It had to be replaced, and Chief Charles J. Seeburger then ordered the pressure at the water plug reduced.

Two lines were played on the fire The second line held up.

Seeburger said such breaks were "quite a common occurrence."

"We test the lines regularly, but you can't ever tell when a section will let go, the shape it's in," the chief said, "I don't know what we'd do if a big fire broke out in the business section. The old hose would never stand full pressure."

The chief said he had asked city council on several occasions for funds to buy new hose, but had been told no money was available

RIVAL UNIONS NEAR ACCORD ON ARMISTICE

A. F. of L., CIO Conferees Work on Truce Despite Green's New Blast at Foes.

STUDY 4-PLY PROGRAM

Agreement Would Block Raids on Membership Until Peace Negotiations End.

WASHINGTON — (UP) — The American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization appeared ready today to negotiate an armistice in their two-year-old battle for dominance of the trades union movement.

Despite a recurrence of a bitter verbal battle between the two factions, their peace committees apparently were closer to an accord than at any time since the joint peace conference began nine days ago.

Suffer Set-Back.

The prospects of an actual settlement were seriously deterred last night, however, when federation President William Green issued a statement attacking an allegedly unauthorized strike of CIO seamen aboard the freighter Algic while in a South American port.

Joseph Curran, president of the CIO's national maritime union and a member of the Mansfield CIO peace committee, charged that Green had "thrown a spike" into the current peace negotiations by criticizing the strike on the Algic.

Whether any repercussions would result from the exchange of words could not be determined.

Cooler heads in each group tried to prevent an open battle on the issue in today's peace meeting, scheduled for 2 p. m.

Study Program.

The conferees will consider today a four-point program which would provide that a truce be called on membership raids by each faction until current negotiations are ended; that both groups continue organizing campaigns during this truce, that the negotiating committee be enlarged; and that the conference immediately begin discussion of what unions should be designed for industrial unionism.

The development of this program was a surprise to observers because of the previous stand-pat attitude adopted at the initial conferences last week.

BATTLE ENDS

Sister Victor In Suit Over $60,000,000 Green Estate.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The bitter battle over the will of Col. Edward H. R. Green, eccentric son of an eccentric mother, was settled today with his sister the victor.

Surrogate Harry E. Owen of Essex county, N. Y., awarded the bulk of the $40,000,000 to $60,000,000 estate of Mrs. Matthew Astor Wilks, who in turn agreed to pay $500,000 to the colonel's widow, Mrs. Mabel Harlow Green.

Mrs. Green contested the will on the grounds that a pre-nuptial agreement she made with her husband signing away her rights to his estate for an $18,000 annuity was obtained fraudulently, and that she was entitled to one-third the estate.

'Cops' Run as Gal Steps to Pistol Range---Never Heard of Annie Oakley

Then, Just to Be Nasty, She Scores Bull's Eye on Her First Shot.

By JANE WILLIAMS

Going after a news story with a pencil is one thing, but when a gal uses a shootin' iron—even big, brave coppers run to cover. Which shows that they never heard of Annie Oakley.

Crack shots from various Ohio police departments stepped up to the pistol range at Mansfield armory yesterday and today in the annual state pistol matches and dauntlessly bang-bang-banged at the targets 75 feet away—but when a lone female took her place at the order of "ready on the left, ready on the right," there was a concerted move toward the back of the building Move? It was more of a dash.

There were ungallant calls of "Look out for the glass in the skylights"..."The end of the pistol with a hole in it is the one you point toward the target"...and "Bet she misses the whole target by six feet."

And then, just to be nasty, we scored a bull's eye with the first shot — right square through the center of the little black target center. (Note—she's got the target to prove it.)

The annual pistol shoot, which is sponsored by the Ohio Brotherhood of Police, brought more than 200 officers to Mansfield from all parts of the state. It is open to officers of city police departments, railroad police, state patrol and private police.

MICHIGAN TRIES OUT AUTOMATIC PAROLE REVIEW

3-Man Board to Take Action Without Application From Prisoner, Attorneys.

JACKSON, Mich. — (U.P.) — Inmates of the world's second largest prison, the state prison of southern Michigan near here, received a "new deal" with the establisment of a new three-member parole board, Warden Joel R. Moore believes.

There are 4,226 inmates confined here in a penal institution second in population only to that at San Quentin, Cal., which has a smaller plant.

"Our inmates had their own blacklist of attorneys who oversold their ability to win releases for them under the former system," Moore said, "but this is all a thing of the past under our new corrections law. No applications for parole can be made by either prisoners or by their attorney, but cases will be considered automatically upon expiration of their minimum sentence."

Moore said the new three-member parole board, supplanting the former single commissioner who recommended to the governor, was the chief item of interest to prisoners in the new law passed by the 1937 Michigan legislature. The board started operation the middle of August.

Work Increased.

"No one commissioner could ever do justice to three state prisons, because he didn't have time to review cases carefully and study personalities at the rate of 75 a day," Moore explained. "With the new board, it will be possible to go into each man's case carefully and the first work indicated that these men can review a total of about 100 cases a day.

"Under the old system of applying for parole," prisoners suffered dire disappointment when they were turned down after being encouraged by attorneys and net result was discouragement. But that will no longer be a factor in prison management in Michigan."

Both Gov. Frank Murphy and Hilmer Gellein, his correction director, spoke of "uneasiness and the feeling of favoritism and privilege" which they said existed among prisoners under the old system.

Moore said he considered post-prison supervision an "absolutely essential phase" which will be handled under the new five-member state corrections commission.

Field Men Vital.

"We are going to train men to work in every part of the state," he said. "Men released from prison must have a human touch within three weeks. It's impossible to scare or preach folks into being good, and former inmates are no exception. From my experience in the federal system, I know that skilful and sympathetic interest of field men is the best thing for paroled prisoners."

Moore, state director of prisons, who worked for the federal bureau of prisons for seven years organizing probation and parole systems in each of the 48 states, said field men will determine the following before prisoners are released:

1. Is his home respectable?
2. Has he a bona fide proffer of work?
3. Is some person in the community willing to be interested in helping work out the ex-convict's relationship with society upon his release?

HEROES OF '32 IN CHINA WIN BACK PRESTIGE

19th Route Army Generals Accepted by Nanking as Real Patriots.

NANKING —(U.P.)— The great surge of national feeling brought about by the Japanese invasion of China has swept aside all former differences among the country's civil and military leaders.

It has brought back to Nanking many political exiles who a few months ago were all but outlaws in the eyes of the government. Among these are the former commanders of the 19th Route army, which gained worldwide fame and admiration during its long-drawn defence of Shanghai in 1932.

The first to return was Gen. Tsai-Ting-kai, field commander of the army and the outstanding hero of the 1932 war. As soon as he came he dropped his well-cut Western suits and the civilian manner he had acquired abroad, donned uniform and left for the front.

Garrison Head Back.

Now he has been followed by Gen. Chen Ming-shu who, as garrison commander of Shanghai and Nanking, was his superior officer in 1932. General Chen is more remarkable as a political than as a military figure. An old Kuomintang revolutionary and former governor of Kwantung, he was the founder of the "Chinese Social-Democratic party" and for a long time a source of irritation to the government.

In 1933 he led the 19th Route Army in a rebellion in the course of which a "people's government" was proclaimed in Foochow with himself as chairman. This government demanded war against Japan and reconciliation with the Red army. Although the rebellion was quickly crushed, its slogans continued to reverberate and were voiced again by the Canton-Kwangsi rebels of 1935 and the leaders of the Sian revolt last December. Today, when they have become the policy of the government, General Chen and other exiles are returning to Nanking not as pardoned rebels but as recognized patriots.

Hsu Chien Welcomed.

With General Chen came the former commander-in-chief of the 19th Route army, Gen. Chiang Kwang-nai, and Gen. Oung Chao-yuan, bespectacled English-speaking director of the heroic defence of the Woosung forts during the first Shanghai conflict. Another, non-military, member of the group is George Hsu Chien, a fiery old radical who, as a leading figure in General Chen's Social-Democratic party, was one of the moving spirits of the Foochow "people's government."

MANY NIGHTS' SLEEP BROKEN BEFORE SHE TOOK WORLD'S TONIC

Pains in Back, Legs, Knees, Neck and Shoulders Kept Her Awake for Hours

Stomach Was Upset and Other Troubles Also Made Her Miserable

"I saw the wonderful relief my husband got by taking World's Tonic and as I was in pretty bad shape myself, I began taking it about three or four weeks ago and I wish I had known about this medicine long ago," said Mrs. Ray Adams, of 435 So. 9th St., Coshocton, O.

"There were many nights that I could get no sleep because I ached all over. The pains changed about from my neck and shoulders down through my arms, back, hips and knees to my feet and ankles. Sometimes in one place, other times in another.

"After eating I would swell up with gas till my clothes felt tight, acid risings came up in my throat and sometimes felt like I had a lump that I could neither swallow nor throw out. Sometimes I felt dizzy. Bright spots darted before my eyes. I had a bad taste in my mouth; my tongue was coated and my complexion was ashen. What little I did eat had no taste to it.

"All of my distress came from a bad case of bowel trouble which seemed I could get no medicine to relieve. I took oil, crystals, salts and other things but always had to change from one to another because they wore out on me.

"But World's Tonic has been different. It gave marvelous relief from this condition and now I have at least one movement every day and often the second, before bedtime. This has relieved my other troubles and now I sleep well, get up with a good appetite and everything agrees with my stomach. No more gas, cramps or sourness. I haven't had a sign of these pains that used to keep me awake.

"My advice to anyone troubled like I was is not to wait one day but start taking World's Tonic at once."

A few doses of World's Tonic will convince you that it is the medicine you are looking for.

World's Tonic is for sale at CENTRAL DRUG STORE.—Adv. (D77)

MINING GROUP MONOPOLIZES RALLYING PLAY

Gold Shares Reach New Two-Year High In London; Buying Brisk.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Gold mining stocks monopolized the rallying play in today's stock market, but many leaders climbed as much as 3 or more points.

Steels, motors, rails and utilities were among the favorites. Buying demand expanded briskly near the second hour and the ticker tape was several minutes late for a while.

Continued popularity of yellow metal shares reflected another jump in the bar gold price at London to a new 2-year high in terms of American dollar parity. Renewed hoarding abroad was said to be due partly to further rumors Washington may lift the gold purchasing rate soon.

Commodities were mixed. Grain and cotton futures improved a trifle. Copper contracts continued to slip. Bonds edged forward.

The week-end trade survey of Dun & Bradstreet provided no great amount of cheer for the boardrooms.

In retail distribution, it was said, more of the advantage over last year's totals was lost, with the estimated volume 4 to 15 per cent over that recorded for the corresponding 1936 week.

With merchants attempting to work off inventories, wholesale purchasing was at about the level of the preceding week, or 6 to 15 per cent above the same period a year ago.

Personal Tax Collections In County Reach $90,145.

With eight more days to go before a penalty is added, personal tax collections today totaled $90,145 on a second half charge of $153,195, according to County Treasurer John E. Kolb

The general personal receipts which up to yesterday had been lagging, were boosted to $71,530 by the collection of $40,000 in one payment, Kolb said.

While less than half of the $43,500 due in classified tax had been collected today, Kolb said he expected a high percentage of collection before the books close Nov. 15. Much of the outstanding tax is due from commercial firms, he said.

THEATER

ONE OF Ethel Merman's biggest thrills on her current trip to Hollywood was a letter she received. It contained a brief note and a $10 bill. The cash was repayment of a loan made in 1933 to a chorus girl who was rehearsing for "George White's Scandals," a show in which Ethel was one of the stars. That chorus girl, who remembered the incident after Ethel had forgotten—was Alice Faye.

Makes Technicolor Debut.

Manhattan—its streets, shops, night clubs and restaurants—has been captured in all its myriad colors for the first time in the technicolor production "Walter Wanger's Vogues of 1938," Ohio theater attraction. The story, written by the authors of "Boy Meets Girl," revolves around a he-man couturier, hereditary head of a famous dressmaking establishment, and a New York socialite who jilts a multi-millionaire on her wedding day to become a mannequin. Heading the cast are Joan Bennett, Warner Baxter, Alan Mowbray, Mischa Auer and Helen Vinson.

Blends Music With Comedy.

Quite different from the run-of-the-mill type of screen musicals is "Something To Sing About," James Cagney's latest film current at the Madison theater. The story sets forth in humorous fashion what happens to a Broadway big-shot, when he is brought to Hollywood to be made into a motion picture star. As the picture opens the hero is a leader of a dance band, and at the end he returns to the orchestra, richer and more famous than ever, but surfeited—not to say disgusted—with the life of a picture star.

All-Color Western Film.

"The Phantom of Santa Fe," featuring Nina Quartaro and Norman Kerry, brings to the Majestic theater screen today a technicolor western dealing with the activities of cowboys a century ago. The plot deals with the robbery of gold and silver sacred vessels from a mission chapel. The hero is accused of the theft and the balance of the film tells of his adventures as he recovers the treasure from the real robbers. John Wayne and Sheila Bromley in "Idol of the Crowds," a hockey picture, is the second film.

"Lightnin' Crandall."

Bob Steele in "Lightnin' Crandall," the story of a cowboy in the guise of a tenderfoot who finds himself involved in a range war between two rival cattlemen, provides a portion of the screen fare at the Ritz theater today and Saturday. Supporting the western star are Lois January and Ernie Adams. Victor Moore and Helen Broderick in "Meet the Missus," is the second feature. The film deals with the penchant of American housewives for entering national contests. Others in the cast are Anne Shirley, Alan Bruce and William Brisbane.

COMMITTEE TO HEAR SECURITY ACT CRITICISM

Vandenberg to Give Report on Study of Program, Labor to Suggest Changes.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The social security advisory committee representing labor, employers and the public-at-large, meets today to discuss the problems and recent attacks onf the government's huge social security program.

Two new attacks on the old age benefits provisions were expected.

Sen. Arthur Vandenberg, R., Mich., will present to the committee a survey he has made of the old-age reserve account—a backlog of accumulated taxes and interest calculated to reach $47,000,000,000 in 1980—and offer his arguments in favor of a pay-as-you-go policy.

Labor leaders from the American Federation of Labor and the Committee for Industrial Organization will offer programs designed to hasten the date when old age benefits will begin, increase the monthly benefits and expand the act to include other classes of workers.

Hits Reserve System.

Vandenberg plans to renew his attack on the full reserve system with information collected from 70 of the largest insurance companies in the country. The system required that taxes collected to pay old age benefits be invested in government securities bearing three per cent interest to insure benefit payments which government statisticians figure will amount to $3,000,000,000 a month in 1980.

Vandenberg contends that such a large reserve is not necessary. He presented to the last session of congress a list of 60 presidents of insurance companies who had written him supporting his stand.

The social security board has taken no formal stand on the question but Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer of the social security board defended the full reserve plan before the senate finance committee last winter. He held that the $47,000,000,000 is about one-third of the amount a private insurance company would expect to accumulate.

The present system, according to Vandenberg, would bind the government to a public debt of $47,000,000,000 in 1980. A government insurance policy is "a totally different thing" from a private policy because the government has back of it a compulsory, tax-supported revenue, he said.

MAP PROGRAM

Church, Y.M.C.A. Join to Stage Recreational Activities.

A recreational program for boys and girls of the Mayflower Congregational church was inaugurated last night at a meeting of the church board and members of the Y.M.C.A. boys' work committee.

The new program is being sponsored by the church board and will be under the supervision of Harold Mansfield, representing the Y. M. C. A. boys' work committee.

More than 30 boys and girls have signed to participate in the recreational program. Meetings will be held every Thursday in the church gymnasium between 7 and 9:30 p m.

Officers elected last night are Paul Wentz, president; Mary Alice Perman, vice-president; Ettabel Hunter, secretary, and Richard Stoughton, treasurer.

CHASES THIEF

Merchant Catches Man Who Admits Store Theft.

A 53 year-old Canton man who was apprehended by a Mansfield merchant on West Third street Tuesday, with his pockets filled with numerous articles of wearing apparel was bemoaning his fate in jail today.

Milton Goudy, colored, was fined $25 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail when he pleaded guilty to petit larceny in municipal court.

Goudy was captured and held for police by William Jefferies, of the Nobil's Shoe store on North Main street. Jefferies told police he saw the man take several pairs of hose from a counter on his way out of the store. He ran after the man and caught up with him near Walnut street.

Boy, 15, Held In Grocery Robbery, Given Leniency

A 15-year-old Springfield youth one of three boys involved in the theft of an automobile and the robbery of a Mansfield grocery store was back home today, although he is now legally the ward of Richland and Clark county juvenile courts.

The boy, Steve Pavelich, escaped from the Columbus Bureau of Juvenile Research two weeks ago and later was captured in Chicago.

After investigating the youth's record, Pronate Judge C. J. Anderson yesterday ordered the boy's parents and confer with them before deciding on the procedure in disposing of the case. Making the boy a ward of the court is the equivalent of a suspended reform school sentence, Judge Anderson said.

Another member of the trio who was taken into custody here after wrecking the stolen car was sent to the Mansfield reformatory last week by Judge Anderson.

ENGINEERS AT MEETING

County Engineer Howard C. Sword and Clyde Moore, county road maintenance engineer, were in Columbus today to attend sessions of the Ohio Good Roads Federation and County Engineers association. Discussion at today's meeting was expected to center around the creation of county highway set-ups similar to the state highway department.

best shots score bulls' eyes repeatedly, firing a shot every four seconds, and again every two seconds, you decide that only a very indiscreet bandit would run when the officer said "halt!" We shuddered as we had a mental picture of those deadly, blazing guns aimed at the sixth vertabrae of a fleeing bandit. And even if the officer didn't score, a bull's eye and happened to hit six inches to the left or right it wouldn't be so good for the bad man.

City departments send only their best shots to the annual meet. Cleveland, out of 3,000 men, sent only eight of its crack marksmen. Most of the men have the finest and most expensive equipment, including special target pistols with hair triggers, and range glasses.

All of which is a sore point with many officers who believe that only service pistols should be used. "It's swell to have fancy shootin' irons for sport," one said yesterday as he watched an officer shoot with a $100 revolver, "but when an officer exchanges shots with a criminal on the lam, he must depend upon his service gun, which is entirely different from an expensive and specially made target gun. All this fancy shootin' wouldn't mean a thing then." But with service guns, or range pistols, the boys are still pretty good. We wouldn't take a chance.

Chief Meade K. Bates, Mansfield, is one who believes that men should compete with their service guns, if the annual shoots are to be of practical service. Regular target practice in Mansfield is done entirely with service arms, Bates said today, which is why so few Mansfield officers are competing in the meeting this year.

One of the snappiest teams at the range yesterday was the Indian Hills Rangers who constitute a private force to patrol and protect the estates of wealthy home owners near Cincinnati.

Highest score yesterday was made by Fred J. Gauvey, Pennsylvania railroad company police captain, of Pittsburgh, who is a regular Buck Jones on the business end of a gun. His score in Class A was 273 out of a possible 300, at a range of 75 feet. Other officers in yesterday's competition that gangsters had better give a wide berth are Owen Clark, state highway partolman, in Class B, who scored 242; and Edgar Rider, Zanesville city police officer, in Class C, who made his target look pretty sick with a score of 172.

The annual meeting ends tonight when some elegant gold trophies will be awarded to the men with the highest scores. Awards will be made by range executive, H. F. Wentz, police lieutenant of Newark.

WESTINGHOUSE PARLEY CLOSES

Air Conditioning Distributors From 6 States Wind Up Two-Day Meeting.

Approximately 50 Westinghouse distributors, engineers and salesmen of air condition equipment from six mid-western states today concluded a two-day meeting in Mansfield in which the 1938 products was introduced and the new sales campaign outlined.

The principal speaker at the final session today was S. F. Myers, Westinghouse air conditioning sales manager who emphasized the importance of air conditioning installation to the local trades industries in communities in which the work is done.

"The rapid development of the air conditioning market has had a marked influence on the general business plane," Myers said, "with practically one-half of the cost of installing equipment going to local tradesmen and craftsmen."

Reviewing the rapid strides air conditioning has made in the past two years, he predicted that business in the industry will reach the $150,000,000 mark in 1938, a gain of $50,000,000 over the 1937 figures.

Men engaged in the sale and distribution of air conditioning equipment are in a position to be of genuine service to their community, not only as a result of increased business activity, but because of their close association with all of the other agencies in the community," Myers said.

The meetings were held at the Westinghouse plant and the Mansfield-Leland hotel, with a dinner at the hotel last night in honor of the visiting representatives climaxing the sessions.

A musical program headed by the Westinghouse band under the direction of R. O. Richards provided entertainment after last night's dinner. All entertainers participating in the program were from the Mansfield plant. G. J. Baird, sales promotion manager, was master of ceremonies.

BURGLARS BUSY, LOOT 3 PLACES

Rob Home and Two Business Establishments; Get Gas at Station.

Crime took no holiday last night as burglars entered two business establishments and ransacked a home, police reports showed today.

Gordon Schwan, 747 Overlook avenue, called police when he entered his home at 11 p. m. and found furniture moved and bookcases and drawers open. He reported two guns and a diamond ring valued at $90 and approximately $10 in cash missing.

Police found that entrance had been gained by prying open a rear window after attempts to force a front door had failed.

At a filling station at 78 Lexington avenue police said, someone used a pass key to enter the station and had turned on the electricity and pumped out 20 gallons of gasoline. They locked the door after them.

The section of Marion avenue, from Maple street to Glessner avenue which has been closed for repaving will be opened to traffic tomorrow, it was announced today by Mayor Earl A. McFarland. Concrete work has been completed.

The street will be closed again within a week for ten days while asphalt surface is being laid, McFarland said.

Not so long ago, people depended upon tales of returned travelers for their information about distant lands. Even when true, these tales were frequently misunderstood and misquoted. Often they were tall tales to begin with . . . There was no way to check up on these stories, no agency devoted to the accurate reporting of what really happened around the world.

Today journalism of integrity is an authoritative source on which to base stories, judgments and opinions. Furthermore, the published story can be referred to and reread in its unchangeable form.

Such journalism requires great care in its compilation, for it must withstand the strong light of publication.

DRIVERS GET FINES, LECTURES

Judge Estimates 50,000 Have Heard His Educational Talks.

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—A ten-minute educational lecture goes with the fine assessed traffic violators by City Judge E. M. Ruddy.

First offenders often are released with just the lecture.

"Most humans are prone to lay the responsibility for careless driving upon the other fellow," he tells the violators, "but bear in mind you are the other fellow to the other motorist."

Judge Ruddy estimates he will deliver 50,000 "lectures" the next year.

ITALY SETS UP EAST AFRICAN BUS NETWORK

Motor Transport System to Parallel Djibouti to Addis Ababa Rails.

ROME — (U.P.) — A big, government controlled company has been organized to engage on a large scale motor transport in Italian East Africa.

The motor lines will use the extensive road system which the Italian government has already constructed or is constructing there.

A royal decree published recently in the Official Gazette authorized the government to subscribe fifty million lire in the capital of this company. Under the same decree the government was empowered to put up an additional fifty million if necessary.

To Supply Trucks.

The government collaboration will consist principally in supplying trucks and buses, repair and refueling stations along the routes, technicians, watchmen and road maintenance gangs.

The company will handle traffic along the main roads, while minor concerns will handle that which can be routed over the secondary roads.

The first line to be operated by this company, and on which only passengers will be transported at first, will be from Massaua, on the Red sea, to Addis Ababa, via Asmara and Dessye, over the just completed highway.

Costs to Be Reduced.

This line will shorten the distance between the capital of the empire and the sea, and will partly eliminate the railroad transit via Djibouti, French Somaliland, and consequently save Italy many millions of lire monthly which she is compelled to pay the French owners of the Djibouti-Addis Ababa railroad for transportation of Italian goods from the Red sea to the capital, via Harrar and other points.

Alessandro Lessona, minister of Italian Africa, is the president of the new company, whose initials are CITAO, meaning Compagnia Italian Trasporti Africa Orientale. Former Undersecretary Luigi Lojacono is the head of the board of directors.

NEW CAR SALES IN COUNTY DROP

Shows Decrease In October Despite Introduction of '38 Models

Despite the introduction of 1938 models last month by a number of automobile manufacturers, new car sales in Richland county dropped below the September figure, while truck sales showed an increase, according to Norman P. Henry, county deputy clerk of courts in charge of automobile registration.

Passenger car sales for October totaled 136, compared with 142 the preceding month. Sales were 49 above October, 1936, however, the reports showed.

Twenty-two new trucks were sold in the county during October as against 20 in September and 15 in October last year.

IT COULD HAPPEN ONLY HERE

In Few Lands Would Censors Let Stage Razz Government as It Does In Broadway Hit, 'I'd Rather Be Right.'

The Supreme Court is Unanimous—at Least, in its Chorus Work.

Secretary Perkins.

Secretary Morgenthau.

The President.

(By The AP Feature Service)

IN FEW nations of the censor-ridden world could a stage play lampoon the ruling regime as "I'd Rather Be Right," just opened on Broadway, lampoons the New Deal.

Imagine what would happen in Italy if a tap-dancing Italian George M. Cohan stuck out his chin in a caricature of Il Duce; or in Germany if some Groucho Marxian swastika-bearer tried to couple the nazi salute with the Bronx*

It might happen France but it is doubtful if even the French take their political problems lightly enough to allow a song-writing team like Richard Rodgers and Larry Hart to put in the mouth of their local James A. Farley a lyric like:

I keep my popularity
Forever hale and hearty
By giving jobs to everyone
In the Democratic party.

Nor could one quite imagine an English buffoon, appearing for the moment as Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, singing, as does Cohan in the role of President Roosevelt:

If I'm not re-elected,
I'll never fear for hunger,
I'll never fear for thirst:
I have one son with DuPont,
Another one with Hearst.

As sharply barbed, too, are the dialogue darts which Playwrights George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart have let go at the New Deal as when the President imperiously shouts: "Cummings, take down a law," or "McIntyre, bring me a fireside, I feel a chat coming on."

There is that suggestion, too, that the U. S. Supreme Court cease its chorus work long enough to declare the Constitution unconstitutional.

In the pictures are the members of the Supreme Court, paired with ladies of the chorus: Bijou Fernandez, as Secretary of Labor Perkins; Taylor Holmes, as Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau; and Cohan as Mr. Roosevelt.

LOSES LEG, WINS COMPENSATION

Former Tire Worker's Plea to Share In State Fund Upheld; Second Action Denied.

Disposing of two cases against the Ohio Industrial commission, a jury in common pleas court yesterday awarded a Mansfield man the right to collect compensation for the loss of a leg and in another case returned a directed verdict for the defendant.

John Southall, who brought action against the commission after his claim for compensation was denied, was granted the right to share in state compensation payments. Injured in 1932 while an employe of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, he later submitted to amputation of his right leg after infection developed.

The directed verdict for the defendant was returned in the case of Ada Upson against the Industrial commission in which the plaintiff sought compensation for the death of her father, C. L. Ackerman, a former city employe.

Mr. Ackerman died in September, 1934, allegedly as the result of injuries he suffered in April of the same year while removing a tree from Central park. The commission refused the claim on the basis that it had no jurisdiction over the case.

FOSSIL TEETH FOUND

ALAMOSA, Colo.—(U.P.)—Fossils excavated at a depth of four feet near here have been identified tentatively as teeth of the pre-historic imperial mammoth elephant. It is known that a species of mastodons roamed Colorado and Wyoming in the Pleistocene age, but the fossils found near here were the first of their type discovered west of Texas.

SEEK RATE ON SEWER RENTAL

Schools Submit New Request to City Council, Ask Special Figure.

A second request that city council establish a special sewer rental rate for the public schools in the Mansfield district was filled today with council clerk William J. Beer by Dr. John H. Bristor, clerk of the board of education.

Dr. Bristor said he had been instructed by the board to present a copy of a resolution requesting a special rate adopted by the board of education at its regular meeting, June 21.

The communication pointed out that the request for the special rate had been presented to council at their July 6 meeting but to date the board has received no reply.

Dr. Bristor pointed out that the board of education has not paid any sewer rentals since the rental was established last spring pending council's decision on the rate.

BLINDNESS ENDS AFTER 20 YEARS

Grandmother's Determination to See Grandchildren Leads to Delicate Operation.

DENVER—(U.P.)—A grandmother's determination to see her grandchildren, three of whom were born since she became blind 20 years ago, led to a delicate eye operation which restored the woman's sight.

It was in 1917 that Mrs Mary V. Dunklee, wife of District Judge George F Dunklee of Denver, lost her sight It was believed then that the cause of her blindness lay in some incurable ailment.

So for 20 years Mrs Dunklee lived in a world of darkness

Recently she became convinced in her own mind that an operation would restore her sight. A Denver doctor was equally convinced Friends warned her of the hazards of such an operation at her advanced age She believed it worth the risk

"Do you realize," she would say, "that I have three grandchildren whom I have never seen? I don't think any risk too great that might permit me to see them"

Following the operation she saw them all also a fourth grandchild, now a grown man, whom she last beheld as an infant.

"It's lovely," she said.

CLEVELAND—(U.P.)—Search for the sunken Sand Merchant which capsized near here Oct. 17, 1936, with the loss of 19 lives, has disclosed that the boat is upside down in 60 feet of water six miles out in Lake Erie.

There is a clearance of about 30 feet for lake vessels passing over the site of the sunken ship

U. S. FARMERS GET $75,000,000 FUND FOR LOANS ON CORN CROP

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The administration came to the aid today of corn growers disturbed by low prices and arranged to finance 1937 corn loans at the rate of 44 to 50 cents a bushel

The loans, similar to those made by the AAA in previous years, will be handled by the Commodity Credit corporation with a $75,000,000 advance from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

Secretary Wallace announced late yesterday the necessary funds are available President Roosevelt had requested Chairman Jesse H Jones of the RFC to supply them

Borrowers will be limited to those farmers who complied with the 1937 soil conservation program and within specified "corn limit areas"

These areas are Illinois and Iowa and parts of Indiana, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio, South Dakota and Wisconsin.

"It is expected that the operation of the corn loan program in the corn limit areas, where corn surpluses are involved," Wallace said, "will provide a more orderly system of marketing and prevent the glutting of corn markets early in the marketing season when corn prices usually are low.

The program also will enable farmers to obtain credit on the corn they have produced and still carry the supply on their farms where most of it will be used eventually

Official state sealers will inspect the farmer's corn in his crib, take samples for moisture content and seal the cribs until such time as the corn is released for use—which in most cases will be to feed livestock

The amount of the loan will depend on the quality, or moisture content, with a top of 50 cents a bushel for corn of 14½ per cent moisture and a low of 44 cents for 20½ per cent Farm leaders had suggested a flat 60 cent loan

The loans will bear 4 per cent interest.

GIVES LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE HERE

Boston Man Discusses 'Its Healing Ministry' In High School Auditorium.

"Christian Science: Its Healing Ministry," was the subject of the annual fall lecture of First Church of Christ Scientist given last night in the high school auditorium, by Dr. Walton Hubbard, C. S. B., of Boston, Mass.

Dr. Hubbard was introduced by Mrs. Frank Hanson, second reader of the Mansfield church. He is a member of the board of lectureship of the Mother church, in Boston.

His lecture, in part, follows:

"Were it possible to call upon the students of Christian Science who form a large portion of this audience to explain the reason for their presence here and their allegience to Christian Science, it would be found that most of them had been healed by Christian Science of sicknesses which had defied other methods of treatment. And the range of these sicknesses which had been healed would be found to be so wide and so varied as to indicate with certainty that the law of God, as taught and applied in Christian Science, heals all manner of sickness and sin.

Refers to Founder.

"It is my intention not only to discuss the teachings of Christian Science, but to tell you something of my own observations in connection with my problem of growing out of the practice of medicine and into the practice of Christian Science. Perhaps these observations may be helpful to some of you.

"A discussion of Christian Science may quite properly begin with its Discoverer and Founder, Mary Baker Eddy. Whatever I may say of her in the limited time at our disposal must of necessity be brief. I would earnestly recommend a study of her life. Several biographies are available at Christian Science Reading Rooms, and she has written something of herself in her book "Retrospection and Introspection." To understand how Christian Science unfolded in her consciousness will make it easier for it to unfold in yours.

"Mary Baker Eddy was a woman of unusual spirituality and deep religious sense. She was a consistent and tireless student, an analytical student, and through years marked by sickness and trials her profound religious sense led her always to strive to see and to understand the infinite Principle in every blessing which she received. This persistent search for Truth was finally rewarded by the discovery of the divine laws of God, which she named Christian Science.

Points to Changes.

"The usual reason for people turning to spiritual means for healing is that the use of material means for the alleviation of their sicknesses have been so disappointing. The history of medicine over the past hundreds of years has been one of constant change. New remedies and new measures are constantly brought forth and marvelous things are claimed for them, only to be discarded later on for newer remedies or newer measures, in which, for the moment, there is greater faith. They are effective only to the degree in which they are believed.

"Christian Science declares itself to be the law of God. It further declares that this law is demonstrably true, that we may understand it, that we may apply it, and that the results will prove its truth.

"The various healings which Jesus, the master Christian, brought about are of especial interest to those who are endeavoring to follow his command to heal the sick, for he instructed his disciples to go into all the world and teach all nations to do whatsoever he had commanded them to do, and he certainly commanded his disciples to heal the sick.

Recalls Sayings of Jesus.

"Jesus said a great many things about healing and the requisites for healing. He insisted that to see the kingdom of God it is necessary to be born of the Spirit, and our experience in Christian Science demonstrates that to perceive the power of Truth, it is necessary for one's consciousness to be spiritualized. Jesus described the human qualities which we must be rid of, and the spiritual qualities which must be cultivated. He declared that by following his teaching we would demonstrate an abundance of every good thing, and would be able to withstand storms of error. He taught that prayer must be deep and heartfelt communion with God. Read the chapter on Prayer in the Christian Science textbook and compare it with Jesus' teaching on this subject in his Sermon on the Mount.

"So to each one who studies Christian Science, there comes some consciousness of the Christ. This divine anointing results in healing now as inevitably as it did in Jesus' time, and it brings a definite reward in peace, and healing, and blessing."

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1937.

It's quite a relief to get Halloween and the election over with at about the same time.

To a recent hypothetical question of 33,000 words, the answer was "No"—which is remindful of the Stroud twins.

Mr. Landon's idea that "this isn't the same Mr. Roosevelt" serves only to further complicate the matter of just what each member of the family is doing at any particular moment.

In the Matter of Special Tax Levies.

COMPLAINT is being made in some Ohio cities over the failure of tax levy proposals to receive the 65 per cent majority required for passage.

While, in an occasional instance, the 65 per cent requirement may appear to work a hardship and to withhold additional funds for which there is real need, such a safeguard for taxpayers seems, in the main, to be fully justified.

Governmental extravagances of recent years have loaded taxpayers so heavily that they may be excused for their present determination to frown upon extra levy proposals, regardless of merit, until some of the burden they are now bearing is removed.

Then, too, it must be considered that while all voters are permitted to express themselves on proposed extra tax levies, the additional taxes are levied only against owners. The time may come when only those who are required to pay the taxes will be permitted to decide on extra levies—in which event a majority vote should be sufficient.

Autos and Prosperity.

ACCOUNT shows 29,000,000 registered motor vehicles in the United States, out of 12,000,000 in the whole world. This is a rise of more than 4,000,000 since the bottom of the depression. By another year we should be up to 30,000,000 if we climb out of the present slump.

Prosperity seems curiously bound up with this industry. We spend vast sums of money on automobiles—so much that, by any old-fashioned standard of judgment, it would ruin us and keep us ruined. Yet the money spent on cars and the services connected with them seems, by a roundabout process, to add to our wealth. And so thoroughly are people "sold" on this principle that there is continual talk of creating new industries—air-conditioning, assembled houses, and so on—so that we can make ourselves richer by spending money on them.

It works, as long as the money we spend comes back to us. The problem is to keep it circulating. In the case of motor cars, this problem is simplified by the fact that, with our present volume of cars in use, it takes 4,000,000 new ones every year merely for replacement.

Tough Going for Gangsters.

WHEN Frank Bird and his wife were recaptured in Cleveland, after a spectacular career of hold-ups, imprisonment, jail-breaking and flight, the wife had nothing but the clothes on her back and one nickel tied up in a handkerchief. She had eaten nothing for two days. The husband, after all the thousands he had stolen from banks, was almost flat broke, poorly dressed, weak from lack of nourishment and suffering from stomach ulcers, as a result of bad food and irregular meals. For weeks they had been in constant fear, fleeing from place to place with never a day's respite. They were so miserable that they scarcely minded being taken by the police.

It has been much the same with other bandits, hunted and driven, living a furtive and frightened life, and liable at any minute to be shot down like dogs. There is logic in a writer's remark: "A criminal career has about as much romance as a rat's nest."

What About School Books?

NO BOOKS that are any good appear in the elementary or high school curriculum," says Dr. Robert Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago.

This is a very sweeping statement. Probably there is a good deal of trash inflicted upon the boys and girls in public schools, but surely it can't all be bad. Dr. Hutchins himself is known as a genius, and an extreme highbrow in his mental processes and literary preferences. A list of books that he gave a while ago as a prescription to make educated men and women couldn't be understood by more than one out of 10,000.

Still, our young people could probably absorb more mature books, in study and general reading, than they are ordinarily expected to in this country. Critics have often told us that boys and girls in Europe do more mature work than ours of the same age.

The Russian People.

LEADERS come and go while the people remain," said Josef Stalin in an unusual speech the other day. "It is only the people who are immortal. The rest are transient. Therefore one must know how to value the trust of the people."

All this is true in any country, in the long run. But it sounds strange in a country that has been governed for ages as an absolute monarchy, in careless disregard of the people, and latterly as a no less absolute oligarchy headed by Stalin in the name of the people, but with the masses actually having nothing to say about it. From the Leader's words, you might suppose that Russia were a democracy of which he was the elected leader, as a president is in America.

It may become so under the new Constitution now going into effect. On the face of it, that is the purpose. But the general expectation is that Stalin will still govern in fact as an absolute ruler, no matter what his title is.

Some day Russia may really be a democracy. But since that is the highest form of human government, it takes a long, thorough course of training.

A New Deal's critic says some of its good intentions have been enormously expensive—which should be referred to hell's paving department.

A Georgia woman who collects four-leaf clovers has lost three husbands—but maybe it's only a superstition.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

THOUGHTS while strolling: To Bing Crosby—Not so much of that nonchalance over the radio, fella! It's a bit too jaunty. Add perennial youths: Walter Wanger. George Jean Nathan will soon be a gray-head. Modern Damon and Pythias: Dick Berlin and Frank Davis.

Look alikes: Don Budge and Sterling Holloway. Jed Kiley and Lowell Thomas have about the only pompadours left. A study in mugging: Mussolini. Joe Schenck, badly shrunk, could pass for his brother Nick. Tito Schipa sounds like tripping over the dog's water bowl in the bathroom.

Whatever became of the curve-top glass show cases? A real baron among the press agents: George Wrangel. Gene Fowler's growl at editors: "sick pythons of the paste pot." Add good old country boy names: Art Kudner, Eddie Reeves, and Wooly Donohue.

Ace of the handsome matrons: Mrs. Margaret Emerson. Radio gabbers could learn heaps about diction and brevity from Edna Ferber's recent three-minute spiel. Dude of the hotel keepers: Johnny Horgan. Perfect description: Gelet Burgess calls this writer a logolept.

Rhyme: Richard Maney is a hilarious zaney. Top in crazy publicity yarns: That one about Rudy Vallee quitting it all to enter politics. City editor with a gyroscopic name: Amster Spiro. Musing: Why is it most of us tell our funny stories to audiences of Ned Sparkses?

Hudson Hawley, once a foreign newspaper correspondent and now attached by a newspaper syndicate, recently read in this column about the boy—Frank Marley—who was good to his grandmother and was left a collection of stamps that turned out to be worth $100,000. Hawley decided to look into a collection left him by his grandfather and an expert told him that one stamp alone with an 1850 date mark was worth sufficient money to pay for a trip around the world for Hawley and his wife.

During 1917, the famous Lafayette Escadrille had two lion cubs as mascots called "Whiskey" and "Soda." They were as playful as kittens and the boys romped with them at the front. But as the cubs grew, complaints began to come in from the mess sergeants that meat was disappearing. Finally the cubs were caught red-pawed stealing a side of beef and the Escadrille had to give them up. This was a wince for Bill Thaw, who loved them, but he was a good soldier and took "Whisky" and "Soda" back to the Paris zoo. In 1918 Thaw was in Paris and thought of the cubs and with a group from the Meurice bar went out to visit them. Jumping over the guard rail near their cage, he started to talk to the pets and they, now full grown, began to purr and roll over as they did in kittenish days. Thaw reached through the bars and cuffed them good naturedly and they even licked his face. Guards by this time came, took one hurried look and pulled Thaw away. He tried to explain he was an old pal but they thought him just another American "vin triste." As he walked sadly away the lions followed every move with their eyes and even stood on their hind legs to get a better look over the heads of the crowd. And Thaw's last look was of two shaggy heads stretched as high as they could reach—their noses pressed against the bars, straining for a last look. They are still alive and Thaw goes back every year or so to see them.

Dudley Field Malone is writing his memoirs—preparatory to a cloistered life in the far west, they say. Few are better known in New York, London and Paris than this now bald and pink-cheeked fellow who might pose for Punch's picture of John Bull himself. He has made life a jolly adventure while serving conspicuously in politics, occupying a responsible post during the Wilson administration as well as being collector of the port of New York for many years. He has also been an international lawyer, pleading cases in many foreign courts. And he is known as one of the witty after-dinner speakers. An accomplished gourmet and first nighter, he is one of the last of the boulevardiers.

At the drug store lunch counter they were discussing a foursome of golf on the morrow. At the public phone this one and that were being phoned and asked to join the foursome. As they departed, the counter boy sighed wistfully: "I don't know anything about foursomes but I could go for a hunk of twosome with Loretta Young."

TIME THEY GAVE MOTHER A HAND!

Taxation Approaches Point of Confiscation

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — The Italian government needs money so badly that it recently resorted to a capital levy to get more of it, dispatches tell us.

Now, a capital levy must be very unpleasant to capital.

A tax on income is disagreeable enough. Even the few dollars that I have to pay on mine makes me ache. Still, I pay it, since there is no escape, and more or less forget it, as water on its way over the dam. But I do try to see that a small reservoirful accumulates BEHIND the dam, and I feel that that really belongs to me. If the government undertook to begin dipping into this little puddle, I am bound to say that I would consider it an overdoing of matters. I can, because I must, stand taxation on what I am getting, but what I've GOT (or gotten, if one wants to be technically grammatical) seems to me to be mine, permanently.

* * *

A SIZABLE AMOUNT

So I can sympathize mildly even with multi-millionaires, who resent the ideas of having the tax collector go "back of the returns," so to speak, to soak them for 10 per cent more (that is the rate mentioned in cables from Italy) than the collector himself had considered reasonable—in fact, oppressive.

Ten per cent is a sizable chunk, by the way—enough to be disorganizing to business.

An inheritance tax is a little different.

I myself do not believe in letting a mere heir profit, indefinitely, from an estate that he had nothing to do with creating.

* * *

TOO MUCH OF A LOAD?

The original creator, however, perhaps was doing something publicly useful.

Probably it is undesirable to overdiscourage him.

Putting the brakes on him is judicious in some cases, doubtless, but STOPPING him may not be such good judgment.

Now, William S. Knudsen of General Motors maintains that capital's taxation has nearly reached the point of confiscation. I am prepared to believe it. If my small income is oppressively "socked," is seems likely that big business' income, with its rising scale of levies, is overly loaded.

* * *

PROMOTE ENTERPRISE!

I suppose this sounds reactionary.

Yet heaven knows that, in my small way, I always have been regarded as a proletarian.

I certainly have been a single-taxer and, what goes with it, a free trader.

There isn't enough of this philosophy left to wad a shotgun, but, in its day, it was deemed radical.

All the same, its keynote was: "Never handicap enterprise!"

* * *

"BAD TAXATION"

My father was a friend of Henry George and, later, of Tom L. Johnson.

His theory was that America's early fairly regular prosperity was due, largely, to its relative lightness of taxation.

In his day, and my own youth, assuredly we were more prosperous, on an average, than at present; it was primitive, but it was actual. We hadn't the sanitary plumbing, the autos and today's gadgets, but, so-so, we were on an equality.

It is not true now.

Has bad taxation anything to do with it?

Some authorities think so—and that its badness has not been improved on lately.

Listen, World!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON—

A Worried Mother's Letter.

ARE your youngsters "too much for you"?

Do you spend anxious hours wondering "what they're coming to" . . . trying to discover why your years of devoted sacrifice and service seem to have come to nothing?

If you're the average American parent, the chances are that you do . . . and that you'll breathe a sympathetic sigh—or snort—with this "Worried Mother" from Englewood, Colorado.

"Dear Elsie Robinson:

"I know you have had children yourself and your general advice seems so sensible that I'm coming to you with our problem. We have two children—both girls, 18 and 21. We have given them everything we could — loving companionship, a comfortable home, a good education, plenty of fun, Sunday School influence. We ask nothing of them but good characters.

"One girl is still in college. The other has a fine position, her own car—is going ahead fast. Everyone says they are splendid young people. And yet, they seem to be drifting away from all our standards. They are never home a single night. Church influence is "out."

"When we remonstrate they say, 'Why should we take your advice, when our problem is so different from those of your youth? You love us—yes—but what do you know about us, really?'

"Everywhere it is the same, Miss Robinson. Young people racing like mad. How can we slow ours down? Reasoning doesn't reach them . . . punishment results in resentment . . . natural concern is regarded as meddling. Must we stand back and let them waste and wreck themselves?

"A Worried Mother."

But are they "wasting and wrecking themselves," my dear—or are they simply keeping step with a schedule you do not understand? Isn't your whole trouble simply a difference in your interpretation of "character"?

You say you want to "slow them up"—but why? Is there anything criminal in their incessant activity—their speed? Haven't we of the older generation, who made this Machine Age, actually forced this speed upon them? What will happen to these children unless they do conform to the tempo we have set?

Your letter-head shows that you and your husband own and run a small industry. That industry, undoubtedly, uses modern machinery. You do not try to slow that machinery up . . . you do not use slow hand methods . . . you would soon go bankrupt if you did. Can't you see that the same facts apply to your children's lives?

Their attitude toward their home and church shock you. You remember, with a homesick longing, the hours spent in your own family circle, your own church. Such sweet hours! I enjoyed them too—I also think of them longingly.

But remember this—home and church meant something then which they cannot possibly mean today. They were our only social centers. We had no movies with their nightly allure . . . no automobiles, annihilating distance . . . no pent-up office hours which caused cramped muscles and minds to clamor for release when the day was done.

We were bored sometimes—yes. But ours was a slow and placid existence, with few outlets. It was thrilling to attend the Young People's Meetings on Sunday night—we might meet a new face. It was sweet to gather around the old table at night, with the neighbors dropping in—where else could we go?

But that old order has gone forever—and I, for one, suspect we're the better for it. We have incomparably more alert minds today . . . wider information . . . less bigotry and intolerance. Our young people may "whoop her up" a bit too loudly . . . but there's none of that secret dry rot, that hidden hate and futility which made many an old-fashioned home a place of horror.

I'm 54, Worried Mother. I raised a boy in "the old days." I'm raising one today. I've seen both methods—and their results. And here's my conclusion:

I'M BETTING A MILLION ON THE DAYS AND THE WAYS AND THE YOUNGSTERS OF 1937!

I believe this present generation is the finest crop the old race has ever produced. I believe we will all have the happiest, healthiest lives and homes IF WE OLDSTERS WILL GIVE OURSELVES AND OUR CHILDREN A BREAK. As for the homes and the churches—they'll still retain their hold if they'll flow with the times. And why shouldn't they flow with the times? Why should we expect the youngsters to make all the adjustments and let us sit tight? Think it over.

WORDS OF THE WISE

Flattery corrupts both the receiver and giver.—Burke.

What One Man Thinks

—By DAVID GIBSON

Failure is in proportion to fear.

We cannot pass laws that will change the boiling point of water.

Often time, the man that is most down on something is least up on it.

Ignorance of the law excuses no man—except the judge. —Bolton Hall.

Is this paint that women now use on their finger nails dishwater-proof?

Do not judge thy neighbor until thou hast stood in his place.—St. Paul.

Too much property is created without invention, management or labor—by the scratch of pens in law offices.

Reading, Observations and Memory.

FRENCH is the diplomatic language of the world. The reason is that it is academic—that is, less subject to change by the influence of dialects and slang as in the case of English and German.

Railroads are learning by experience that there is more wear and tear from light equipment than heavy equipment such as now most generally in use.

The lighter rolling stock has more of a percussion or hammer-like action both upon the rails and equipment.

There is also a tendency back to steam rather than Diesel locomotives. The B. & O. system is bringing out a 16-cylinder type of steam locomotive—the cylinders distributed upon the axles. They are designed to develop 120 miles per hour and run long distances without change at division points.

The Southern Pacific system is now using a type of locomotive with the cab in front—as in the case of the control of a ship or automobile.

The electrification of railroads, save for short distances through great cities, is now an obsolete practice.

A MAN named Herrick has invented what he calls a vertaplane which can ascend from a back yard as a gyro or windmill plane, be converted in the air to a fast biplane and land again in a distant back yard as a gyro again. No more long runs on level ground nor expense in patrolling and lighting landing fields.

This will lead to a fine opening for young men just starting out in life—as smugglers. Pack one of these windmill planes with United States goods, and land with them over night upon some unostentatious point in Canada—freedom to a lot of trade.

Some of these protection countries will find themselves in need of tariff roofs rather than tariff walls.

THE present practice of law is based upon precedent rather than principle. It is what is known as case law—that it, it involves a research of decisions applying to a case in hand, and by this research it is possible to find learned decisions by courts on either side of any case.

Law students of today do not read "Commentaries on the Laws of England," (1769), by Sir William Blackstone, as did the lawyers of their father's and grandfather's generation, and which can still be found in any fairly complete public law library.

It contains the principles of the law, natural law, based upon common sense, human rights over property rights, which should be the basis of all court decisions.

Every young law student should diligently pursue the first few chapters of the second book of Blackstone's "Commentaries." He will find much in the classification of property which has led up to our present chaotic economic state and which will be found useful in dealing with the future:

That new laws can not be passed, nor present laws interpreted to change the boiling of water.

THE question is frequently asked as to just what part environment plays in the development of man.

It is about that of good soil and sunlight in plant life.

There is an old German proverb in referring to the offspring of onery parents: "The acorn never falls far from the tree."

We might plant an acorn in a peach orchard, but we won't get a peach tree.

There are white, red, scrub and pin oaks that have developed as a matter of environment as to soil and climate, but they all remain oak trees.

There are big and little dogs, but they all remain dogs.

Environment plays a large part in a succession of generations, but not much happens in one generation.

There is frequently a development of the intellect in a human being in adjustment to environment, or an impetus is given the will in getting out of one environment and in favor of another, better one.

According to the evolutionists, man as he is understood today is about 500-thousand years old and it took 5000 years to raise his forehead an inch above his eyes. Originally, he was perhaps some ape-like creature cast into an environment where it was more convenient to walk on his hind legs, and he began reaching out with his hands and arms—he developed his intellect in order to extend the power of his body beyond himself, and that is about what he has been doing ever since—mechanically, chemically, electrically, spiritually.

That not very much happens in one generation is illustrated by the fact that 3500 years in the formation of crystal life does not mean very much to a geologist, but a sociologist, in his effort to improve conditions of society, becomes very impatient within his own short span of life.

"Nature neither hastens nor delays."

THE newest born babe is entitled to its share of the natural resources of the earth—more so than those who hold paper title to them.

This is the natural law and all statute or common law to the contrary.

Just now in Texas there is a wild scramble for oil leases—Black Gold, as the product is called.

These oil lands, as submerged wealth, are owned by the School Fund of the state of Texas.

Through recent leasing, it is estimated that the School Fund of the state will receive from 10 to 15 million dollars in cash from this source together with one-eighth the price of the product.

Understand, these oil lands are not sold in perpetuity or outright—they are leased to oil operators by competitive bidding.

This is pretty near Single Tax!

We haven't much Black Gold in Ohio, but we have some Beautiful Gardens of Kale here in our great cities—publicly created land value the same as that Texas oil, but unlike that Texas social value, it is privately owned in perpetuity.

For instance, in Cleveland there is a land value of nearly one billion dollars.

It is held totally by 84,000 owners, or about eight per cent of the total population of a million souls.

Half this value is held by 500 owners and one-third of this total value is held by 125 families.

In Cincinnati there are three families that own nearly 75 million dollars of its total land value.

The rent of this land, all that is necessary, should go to defray the cost of government and to the tax relief of the farmer, manufacturer, merchant, building owner—the people.

THE STATE vs. ELNA JEPSON

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

(Copyright 1937)

CHAPTER VII

Then came the reckoning with Georgiana, with Louise and Harold. With a nightmare strangeness, Elna heard herself accused of killing her father, heard herself accused of disrespect for the dead.

"You would not let us see him,' Georgiana stormed, tears blotching her cheeks. "His heart was always strong. You don't need to tell me that it would have given way if you had tried to save him. You let him die! If I had been there——"

"He did not wish to see you." That much was given her to say. No more. She was the only one left to regard that "No trespass" sign.

"You are a hard, ungrateful, unnatural daughter!" Revenge flared in Georgiana. "You are unworthy of his name. You virtually killed him!" The words stormed down upon Elna like shattering stones. She is trying to make me break. I will not break, Elna thought.

"You are being very rude," Elna said.

Louise was crying in a corner. "What are you made of?" she sobbed. "Not even the blinds drawn. Not even a flower in the house!" Louise was Oscar Jepson's sister, who had married a minister. Elna felt sorry for her, robbed of her burst of glory.

"Father disliked flowers," she explained gently. "I have sent them all to the living."

Harold came forward and put a hand across her shrinking shoulders.

"Aren't you taking a good deal on yourself, for one so young?" he suggested. "Won't you take advice from one older—I won't say wiser?"

"I am neither old nor wise," said Elna, erect as a statue in the middle of the room. She kept contempt out of her voice—the contempt she felt for the mechanics of sympathy, the torture they were willing to inflict to have their place in the funeral of the great Oscar Jepson.

"Surely, at least a simple little service out of respect for the dead." Harold pressed his point. "Very beautiful, very simple. After all, Oscar was a great man. You would not wish to be misunderstood, I know. Still less would you wish him to be misunderstood."

Elna closed her eyes for a moment. Harold's voice was exactly like mayonnaise dressing.

"There will be no funeral whatsoever," she said tonelessly. No explanations, no apologies—she could almost hear him saying it. "My father's body will be cremated in the simplest way possible. No one will be present—not even myself. I have no interest in respect for the dead. Some of my father's houses live."

* * *

Even to her own ears it sounded harsh and cruel. She felt the blood drain from her face and unobtrusively braced herself against the back of a chair. She was at one with her father in this. Steadfastly she thought of him. He would have found it easier. Someone again said she was unworthy of the Jepson name. The voices were confused in her ears. Only the strong survive, her father had said. She must survive.

"You may as well go," she said at last. "It does not matter in the least to me whether either I or my father is misunderstood or not. I am sorry to disappoint you."

Firmly she escorted them to the door. She closed it gently. Curtis Graham found her there, in the hallway, in a dead faint, the first of her life. He had scrambled through the kitchen, cursing the lacks in the training of a certified public accountant. He decided on vinegar. Drenched, she grinned up at him and scrambled to her feet.

"I thought you were dead," he moaned.

"You don't kill a Jepson—at least, not easily—even by relatives," she answered with a faint smile.

"You game little kid!"

"Don't get sentimental," Elna warned. "You've practically ruined my frock."

"You might at least let me help."

"I never said you couldn't. Help me sort out this desk, and the mail," Elna answered briskly. The task in itself was a relief. Letter after letter, telegram after telegram, was passed to Graham with the brief order, 'Just telegraph thanks.' He watched her white face.

"I am doing only what my father would have willed. Didn't any of them know him—any one? Didn't they know how he would have hated all this? So I'm going through with it—his way. Is that wrong?" The pleading and uncertainty in her voice were too much for Curtis.

* * *

He knelt on the floor, his face buried in her lap. "Oh, Elna, Elna, marry me! Let me take care of you!" The words were almost inarticulate as he clutched the skirt of her gown.

Maternally, although they were of equal age, she stroked his hair.

"Never mind,' she said, suddenly clear. "I don't need any one to take care of me. I had a moment of weakness—forget it, please. Father would not have been weak like that. Poor child, I let you worry about me. You needn't. You've been very nice, but I shouldn't have accepted so much. We Jepsons stand on our own feet."

"Yes." The young man rose. "You don't need me. But if ever you do—count on me."

"Hardly likely,' Elna answered with a smile. "But run along now. I'm busy."

"Don't mind the papers," Curtis flung back over his shoulder as he stumbled out of the door.

"I shan't," she answered almost gaily. "'Sticks and stones can break my bones, but words can never hurt me!'"

Only they could. Words could hurt. To reporter after reporter she declined interviews on Oscar Jepson's private life. But she could not keep her eyes away from the headlines.

A man named James alone had written a kindly article, had written that by Jepson's expressed desire there should be no services, no additional information about him. The others, balked and annoyed, described him as "eccentric"—he who had been so logical. Some of them had even gained access to Georgiana, to Harold. There were things about herself from them, her coldness, her hardness, her "throwing away" of all tributes to her father's memory.

The next day the milkman came with his monthly bill, and when she opened her purse to pay him, she found only fifty cents in it. She must get some money, at once. There was the hospital bill too. Ever since her graduation from the university and her secretarial apprenticeship she and her father had had a joint checking account into this went her own earnings as well as her father's current income. Out of it she paid household expenses as well as her personal expenditures.

"What is mine is yours," her father had said. "You handle the funds. I'm too busy to be bothered. That will be your contribution to take care of things for us."

When she stood before the teller, who had known her from childhood he nodded sympathetically.

"I need quite a lot," she said. "This is for three hundred. But the account is pretty high this month, I think." Her voice was crisp, impersonal.

"I'm dreadfully sorry, Miss Jepson," the teller said, "but you cannot draw on this account until your father's will is probated. That is the law. I am sorry," he added miserably.

"But—it is partly my own money—it is a joint account—" Her lips felt so stiff that the words came out in jerks.

The teller vanished. She did not know that he had gone until his hand was thrust under the grille. Five twenty-dollar bills lay on the slab before her.

"This is from my personal account,' he said half stammering from embarrassment. "I know things must be—difficult—for you just now. Return it when you like. We—appreciate—your father's patronage. It isn't my fault, you know."

"Certainly not," Elna said coolly. "I understand. No, that's a lie. I don't understand, but I know you can't help it."

Fifty cents. She had a quick vision of starving to death in the big, old house.

"Thank you," she said, "but my father taught me never to borrow—never, in any circumstances. It was nice of you to offer, but I can't begin now. I really am more grateful than I may sound. But I shall be quite all right."

She turned to go. "See your attorney if you have one," the teller advised. "He may be able to make arrangements. And look for your father's will. Miss Jepson."

Her attorney? Why, she had never been in an attorney's office in her life! Where was her father's will, if he had ever made one? Maybe he hadn't.

She dragged her feet up the front stairs and automatically opened the mail box. Only one letter, thank heaven. Mechanically she noted the typewritten address, the "Ainsworth and Ainsworth" engraved in the upper left-hand corner of the envelope. Poor Mr. Ainsworth, her father's oldest friend, where they had played bridge a week ago! She would buy a stamp to answer him, at least. She sank into a chair in the hallway, and opened the letter.

"Dear Miss Jepson——" The typewritten superscription surprised Elna and sent her eyes darting to the signature. Old Mr. Ainsworth had always called her "my child" and her father had snorted at the sentimentality of the phrase. "Sincerely yours, Roger Ainsworth," she read. That would be the son, but he scarcely knew her. She pushed her hair back in a gesture of bewilderment. Her head felt queer and light. Why should Roger Ainsworth be writing her?

"Well, find out." It was like her father's voice in her ears. Instantly, as she began to read, the businesslike phrases steadied her. This was no letter of the mechanics of sympathy. She read:

"Dear Miss Jepson,"

"Several months ago my father, now retired, received a power of attorney from your father. He rented a safety deposit box and gave the keys to my father, whom you may remember. At that time he arranged that since neither Mr. Jepson nor yourself were acquainted with business, my father should have charge of all investments.

"I trust you will be satisfied with our efforts. I have taken the liberty of opening the box, at my father's request, and there found a holographic will, making you his sole heir and executrix without bond. Perhaps you do not know that most holographic wills are defective. This one is perfect. This is merely the tribute of an attorney to your father's unusual power of perfection.

"If you will call at our office, I think we can evade probate proceedings and release your bank account, which may have inconvenienced you.

"Sincerely yours,

"Roger Ainsworth."

Elna crumpled the sheet of paper in her hand. This man, whom she barely knew, assumed that she could stand on her own feet. The impersonality of the letter was like cool water on her brow. He had given her help, given her information, with no trace of formal sympathy. As she remembered him at the bridge game, he was only a few years older than herself. But he would understand her father. His features were vague to her, but his letter showed something akin in Oscar Jepson and Roger Ainsworth. Oscar, also, had been no spendthrift of sentiment. She made an appointment by telephone through Ainsworth's secretary.

FOREIGN WINES PUT ON ITALY'S NEW BLACKLIST

King Sets Example With Il Duce Extending Campaign For Home Products.

ROME—(U.P.)—King Victor Emmanuel, in keeping with Italy's self-sufficiency campaign, has ordered that no more foreign wines or beverages are to appear on the royal tables.

Amedeo Pettini, chief chef to the king, announced that henceforth only Italian wines and liqueurs will be served at the Quirinal, in a story appearing in the Turin newspaper, Gazzetta del Popolo.

Every bottle of foreign wine consumed in Italy means a reduction of Italy's gold balance. The king therefore decided to subscribe to the "Buy Italian" movement.

His chef gives a list of the various wines which were served at his majesty's table and their Italian substitutes.

With the hors d'oevres Capri, Salerno and Cortese is served instead of Bordeaux. Burgundy and Chablis. Zucco, Vernaccia and San Michele is served with soups and spaghetti instead of Madera and Sherry. Lacrima Christi, Soave, Frascati and Trebbiano have taken the place of Moselle, Rhine wines and Graves which were served with fish.

The first meat course once was accompanied by light Bordeaux and Burgundies, which have now been substituted by Lambrusco, Dolcetto and Fiesa. With the main meat course and cheese red Barolo, Barbera and Barbaresco is served in place of old heavy red Burgundies and Bordeaux. With sweets, Italian champagnes such as Gancia, Bosca, Cinzano and Asti have taken the place of Mumm, Moet et Chandon, Pommery and Veuve Cliquot. Hennessey, Martel, Courvoisier and other brandies have been replaced by Italian Sarti, Luxardo and Baker brandies.

Premier Benito Mussolini, like the king, follows the "Use Italian" campaign. He has learned that to practice what he preaches is the best way to convince Italians to follow his commands.

During the famous "eat more rice" campaign, Fascist-controlled newspapers published long articles relating how numerous sacks of rice had been shipped to the dictator's villa in Rome by a rice producer of Novara.

3 VOLUMES ADDED TO MEMORIAL COLLECTION AT PUBLIC LIBRARY

Three books are being added to the John Baxter Black Memorial collection at Public library this week including a volume of widely read fiction and two non-fiction.

"Katrina" by Sally Salminen won the Helsingfors prize novel contest in 1936 and has been published in nine different countries. Katrina, a rich farmer's daughter from the north of Finland, married a boasting sailor from the Aland Islands, going with him to make her home in a miserable cottage. The book tells of her determined struggle to make a home for herself and her children by working for rich farmers. The stormy landscapes and rough peasant life on the Aland Islands form a fitting background for the portrait of a courageous woman.

"The Arts" by Van Loon, and "The Good Society" by Walter Lippman are the other two Memorial books. Van Loon's book was written to show the universality that underlies all forms of art. With an informal style, Van Loon discusses painters, musicians and other craftsmen, illustrating the book with colorful sketches. Lippman, commentator on world affairs, indicates the eventual way out of the present world dilemma in which men must sacrifice freedom to gain security. He advocates a liberalism that is unlike any present political system.

John Erskine writes of another historical figure in "The Brief Hour of Francois Villon," using the French poet whose songs have lived more than 500 years and whose colorful life has inspired plays and operettas, notably "If I Were King" and "The Vagabond King." Erskine shows the man as something more than a rogue, but of necessity stooping to knavery; a charming madcap rascal with a penchant for lovely, susceptible ladies, and a deep lust for life.

"Famine" by Liam O'Flaherty is the story of the 1845 famine that wiped out a large part of Ireland's population.

Four other books round out the fiction list this week, "Brothers Sackville," by Cole and Cole; "Langworthy Family," by Corbett; "Brentwood" by Lutz; and "Points Beyond" by Marks.

"Animal Treasure" by Ivan T. Sanderson is a revelation of the animal life which abounds in the West African jungles. A young naturalist really enthusiastic about his vocation, the author organized an expedition to study the animals in their natural habitat.

Other non fiction is: "Library in the T V A Adult Education Program," by Chancellor; "Elementary Lessons in Lip Reading," Bruhn; "Father Shipherd's Magna Charta," Hosford; "The Airdale," Haynes; "American Annual of Photography—1938;" "Poems" Auden; "Studies in Victorian Literature," Williams; "General History of the World," Duruy; "General Chiang Kai-Shek," by General and Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek; "On Gilbert Head," Etnier; "Andrew Jackson: Portrait of a President" by James; "Whitman," by Masters; "Indians & Pioneers," Foreman and "Allah Dethroned," by Linke.

CEMETERY GIFT TO CITY

SAN FRANCISCO—(U.P.)—A $2,000,000 cemetery has been offered to the city of San Francisco as a gift, according to W. B. Ries, president of the Laurel Hill cemetery association. Ries said that trustees had voted in favor of the move, providing that the city turned the 54-acre property into a memorial park to commemorate those buried there.

PLAYERS MAKE SEASON DEBUT NOV. 16 IN 'LIBEL'

Large Cast In English Drama Includes Number of Newcomers.

The Mansfield Community Players will open their 12th consecutive season Nov. 16 at the Senior high school auditorium with the English drama "Libel," the story of an alleged libel in a newspaper.

The cast, chosen by Helen Bacon, director, is an unusually large one, with a number of names that are familiar to Community Player audiences, in addition to several new players.

Among the newcomers will be two who have had considerable experience in amateur theatricals, Charles Newcomb, who has appeared in a number of Westinghouse shows, and Mrs. Vincent Lodde, dramatic interpreter and reader, will play important roles. Others who will make their bow with the Players are Alfred Stephanek, Gerald Swank, Kathleen Sturges, Daniel Reese, and several in non-speaking parts.

Among the older players are Ben Goodenough, who played a leading role last season in "Counselior-at-Law"; Ruhland Isaly, who appeared in "Broken Dishes," "Ten Minute Alibi," and "Three Cornered Moon"; Herbert Slough, who has been in many of the Community plays, William Cullen, Ferd Loykovitch, and Russell Tither, all of whom were seen last season.

Three plays will be presented this season. One of them will be "First Lady," the Jane Cowl stage hit, which Kay Francis is doing in the movies, and a third play as yet not definitely decided upon.

Women of the Pilgrim Guild of the First Congregational church are selling the season tickets this year. Approximately 400 have been sold to date.

FIRST MEETING

Social Workers Open Season With Round Table Discussion.

When members of the Mansfield Social Workers club hold their first meeting of the year at First Methodist Episcopal church Monday night, there will be a round table discussion of correctional needs with regard to juvenile delinquency The meeting will be preceded with a supper at 6:30 p. m.

Besides the speaking program and discussion, there will be entertainment features, a fashion show and parade. J. Leo Hartman, president of the club, will be in charge of the meeting.

According to "Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering," an automobile tire, costing $50 in 1910 produced 5,000 miles, while in 1936 a tire costing $15 is good for 20,000 miles.

MACHINE PICKS AND DRIES HOPS

Accomplishes Work of 200 Men In Same Length of Time, Inventor Says.

YAKIMA, Wash.—(U.P.)—Experiments are being conducted here with a device which, if successful, is believed destined virtually to revolutionize the hop-picking industry.

R. Langevin, of the White Bluffs district near here, has perfected a machine which not only picks the hops, but dries them as it works. Langevin said he has been working on the mechanical kiln and picker for nine years.

Thirty men, with the aid of the machine, can accomplish the same amount of work as 200 men in the same length of time working in the field, the inventor says.

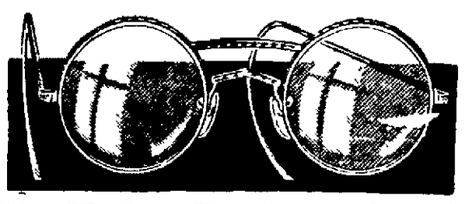
"The machine turns out cleaner hops than hand labor and when the hops land in bales, they are dried and ready to ship, Langevin said.

Vines are cut in the fields and tied to sticks about 8 feet long. These sticks have six rings on them to hold the vines in place

The vines are started on a chain conveyor into a long shed and move at about seven inches a minute in double rows. The room in which they pass is kept heated by blower conduits from boiler rooms located in the basement. When the hops reach the center of the shed they are almost completely dried.

The vines then move through twin rollers, one of which looks in cross section like a four-leaf clover—the other a conventional cylinder.

Accused in his own time of nature faking because of the dramatic poses in which he portrayed birds, John James Audubon, early American naturalist, has been vindicated by the studies of more recent scientists.



Office Workers Require Perfect Sight

Office avocations subject those thus employed to severe eye strain. To be 100 per cent efficient in your work, good sight is vitally essential. Wear glasses if your vision is low, if your eyes tire easily, burn or smart, and become uncomfortable. Your eyes are important to your job.

Bridges Owned By Ohio To Pay For Selves In 8 Years

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The Ohio state bridge commission has reported to Gov. Martin L. Davey successful operation of the three toll bridges it has acquired, and that they would become free seven and one-half to eight years after purchase dates.

Operation of the Sandusky Bay bridge, purchased May 1, 1936, for $1,925,000, already has resulted in 283,000 of the bonds being redeemed. This was accomplished with a 50 per cent reduction in tolls.

Since acquisition a year ago of the Fort Steuben bridge across the Ohio river at Steubenville, $50,000 of the $1,600,000 purchase price has been paid from revenues, although tolls have been reduced one-third.

Bad road conditions in West Virginia were held responsible for "very low" revenues from the Pomeroy-Mason bridge across the Ohio river, which was purchased a year ago for $350,000. If West Virginia roads are improved, the report said, the Pomeroy Bridge would be free in a "very short" time.

GET LAST LAUGH

Burglars Shun 'Empty Sign' On Safe, Profit By $150.

MELBOURNE —(U.P.)— A bottle company in Melbourne thought they would keep away thieves with the following notice pinned to their safe: "No money here, only books." A few days after the notice was put up burglars broke open the safe, took away $150 in cash and added the following to the firm's note: "We did not believe you."

INJURY, ILLNESS CAUSE LOSS OF $2,000,000,000

Workers Lose Through Sickness, Accidents Mostly Avoidable, Report.

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Fifty million workers in the United States lose approximately $2,000,000,000 annually through injury or personal illness, most of which could have been prevented, the American College of Surgeons has estimated after a year's industrial survey.

The common cold "still is the greatest cause of absenteeism," Dr. M. N. Newquist, Chicago, assistant director of the college, told the 3,000 assembled surgeons.

"Since much of the absenteeism in industry is preventable we then have additional tangible objectives towards which an industrial health program should be directed," he added.

Cause Half-Day Loss.

His report, part of a symposium on industrial medicine, detailed a survey of 116 companies employing 352,591 persons. It showed, he said, that industrial injuries amounted to approximately one-half day per person. The average worker lost 15 times as much time from non-industrial injuries and illnesses as he did from indurtrial injuries.

A survey of 299 organizations representing 1,227,775 workers showed an average medical cost of $5.11 per employe for 1936, compared to $6.30 per employe in 1932. These firms, he said, employed a fulltime first aid room attendant and a qualified physician.

"The gradual increase in annual per capita medical costs (88 cents in 1915 to $5.11 in 1936) has not been an increasing burden on employers," Newquist said. "On the contrary, this expenditure for medical service has effected far greater savings, by reducing labor turnover, by maintaining healthier, happier and more efficient workers, by reducing accidents and occupational diseases and by reducing absenteeism in general."

Newquist said that 1,657 industrial firms representing approximately 5,500,000 employes had been surveyed.

NAVY PREPARES TURKEY FEAST

30,000 U. S. Sailors to Have Average of 3 Pounds of Bird Each on Holiday.

SAN DIEGO, Cal. —(U.P.)— The 30,000 odd sailors who comprise that part of the navy station in San Diego are going to have plenty of Thanksgiving turkey to satisfy even the most ravenous—an average of more than 3 pounds per man.

This was released here when supply officers said they had ordered 90,000 pounds of turkey—45 tons, to be exact—to top the holiday menu at ship, and shore, establishments here.

Of course, the 90,000 pounds represents bird on the foot, but even allowing for shrinkage in dressing, the sailors will have plenty.

In addition to the turkey the Thanksgiving grocery list of supply officers would fill a market basket which would cause even a Hercules to stagger.

The list for the month includes: 1,125,000 pounds of canned corn, 3,300,000 pounds of tomatoes, 1,700,000 pounds of peas, 7,000,000 pounds of evaporated milk, 2,000,000 pounds of peaches and pears, 1,500,000 pounds of jam, 500,000 pounds of sauerkraut, 1,750,000 pounds of catsup, 1,000,000 pounds of apples, and to top it all off, 360 tons of spinach.

No estimate was made of the amount of ice cream which will be needed to round out this sailor's meal de luxe.

Dessert knives and forks often are more practical for the young bride than the dinner size.

A Certain Amount of Footwork Improves a Child's Brainwork

By LYDIA GRAY SHAW
(AP Feature Service Writer)

NEW YORK—Education from head to foot is geting attention from New York public school supervisors, who have discovered that ill-fitting shoes and weak arches have plenty to do with brain power.

Miss Carol Cotton, health education supervisor in the New York city schools, has inaugurated a course of foot improvement based on a survey begun in 1934, which showed an alarming proportion—45 per cent—of school children examined have weak feet. She's found, too, that grades improve with foot corrections.

The Solution.

She persuaded the board of education to take footprints of children in representative schools in the city system. The children stand on one foot on the footprinting instrument, in a ballet-dancer attitude, and press the outline of their foot on a white piece of paper. This shows up all defects.

Then, what to do about it? Miss Cotton advises the pencil-gripping exercise, which classes or individual pupils seize upon with enthusiasm. It's particularly good for weak arches, though a marble may be substituted for the pencil. The children rotate their ankles, maintaining a firm grip on the pencil at the same time.

About Shoes.

Next, they toe the mark while Miss Cotton takes a look at their shoes. Round toes and broad heels are essential for growing youngsters, she says. And shoes should be half an inch longer than the foot to allow for rapid growth. No cast-off shoes, either. Wearing older brother's or sister's discards is very likely to cause trouble.

STONE FISH

Three Pay Fines For Molesting Salmon in Canadian Creek.

NORTH VANCOUVER, B. C.—(INS)—Throwing stones at salmon on their way to spawning grounds is an indictable offense, Oswald Jenest, Jack Livie and Walter Brucq learned, when Magistrate R. A. Sargent fined them $1 each. They were charged with molesting salmon passing up Seymour creek.

Because of domestic production, United States imports of foreign dyes have decreased from a high of 50 million pounds to approximately five million a year.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Marguerite de Angeli has written and illustrated another lovely book for young readers. This time it is about a little girl who lives on the Gaspe Peninsula in Canada, and it is called "Petite Suzanne."

Her real name was Suzanne, but kind Uncle Jacques always called her Ti-Su. Besides Uncle Jacques, there were Tante Eugenie, Pepere, a brother and three sisters, not to mention a cat and dog, so the little house was full to overflowing.

The most exciting thing that ever happened to Ti-Su was the day she went to Perce, in an automobile, with the tourist lady. She had never been so far away from home, and to go in an automobile! The tourist lady painted, and that was something that Suzanne wanted to do above all other things, but she had no brush and no paints.

We rather suspect that the author and the tourist lady are one and the same person.

Christian Character and Peace

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for Nov. 7 is Colossians 3:17, the Golden Text being Col. 3:15. "Let the peace of Christ rule in your hearts, to the which also ye were called in one body.")

ON THE EVE of another anniversary of that wildly jubilant Armistice day of 19 years ago we are compelled to recognize the disillusionment these years have brought It was not the ending of "a war to end war," nor of one "to make the world safe for democracy." Such changes come "not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts."

The Price of Peace.

We can not have "peace on earth, good will toward men" apart from or in rebellion against Christ, to whom, ages before and since his birth, have looked expectantly, as "the price of peace." To him Christian citizens of all nations look as they pray, "Thy kingdom come; thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven." So St. Paul, from his prison in Rome wrote to his friends in Colosse: "If then ye were raised together with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is, seated on the right hand of God. Set your mind on the things that are above, not on the things that are upon the earth." The Christian citizen exerts his influence to bring the policies of earthly governments into accord with "the things that are above."

National Covetousness.

National covetousness leads to all manner of national sins to achieve that for which it covets. So-called civilized nations resort to barbarism in the ruthlessness of their attacks upon peaceable peoples to dispossess their helpless victims of territory or natural reources. Treaties solemnly drawn and signed with neighbor nations are held in contempt when they stand in the way of this national "covetousness, which is idolotry." "Lie not one to another" is not applicable between nations as between individuals, according to this international anarchy. The result of this new barbarism, was recently defined by President Roosevelt thus: "Innocent peoples and nations are being cruelly sacrificed to a greed for power and supremacy which is devoid of all sense of justice and humane consideration."

The remedy for all this is to be found in nothing short of "letting the peace of Christ rule the hearts" of mankind. Only in him can there be found a force adequate to stem the rising tide of nationalism.

FACE LAY-OFF

120 Sales Tax Employes to Lose Jobs Through Cut.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—About 120 employes of the sales tax division face a two months layoff as a result of action by the State Emergency Board.

The tax commission had asked the board for an appropriation of $64,700 for salaries of sales tax division employes for November A similar request was to be made for December.

The board voted to give the commission $45,000 for November and a similar amount for December.

Walter Mitchell, tax commissioner in charge of the sales tax division, said he would have to cut the staff of 400 in proportion to the amount his request was cut.

CURB EXPENSES AT CRESTLINE

School Board Members Act as Operating Levy Fails at Polls Election Day.

CRESTLINE — At a special meeting of the board of education held Wednesday evening, action was taken to reduce expenses following the failure of the three-mill levy at the election.

It was decided to discontinue all use of the school buildings at night except on a rental basis. Three exceptions were made in the case of events scheduled for the immediate future. This action will affect extra-curricular activities of the school and the program of adult education.

Many organizations of this nature such as the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, the Girl Reserves, and the Girls' Athletic association, will probably find it impossible to pay this rental and find it necessary to suspend operations, it was said.

It was also decided to discontinue the high school band and the high school orchestra.

Curtailment of the athletic program is also planned. One home basketball game has been changed to a game abroad and cancellation of several other games is under considearation.

The entire program of interclass and intramural competition has been abandoned.

The operation of the movie projector will be limited immediately and possibly abandoned as soon as films booked for the immediate future are shown.

Along Motor Row

Improvements.

Shock-free steering, sway-free riding and Lifeguard safety inner tubes are among the improvements in the new 1938 Chrysler models now on display at showrooms of the Herring Motor company, 30 South Walnut street. Safety and comfort of the driver and passengers was foremost in the minds of the planners of the new Chrysler models, with special attention paid to the little details that please the fastidious car owner. A special stabilizer is designed to minimize roll and side sway, and the mounting for the steering apparatus takes the fatigue out of driving.

* * *

Combination.

Convenience plus beauty is provided in the new Dodge two-door sedan which has a big tire and luggage compartment under the sloping rear panel of the body which is accessible through a lid in the panel. Another convenient feature is the tilting front seat which permits passengers to enter and leave the rear seat without having to climb over the seat or around it. The 1938 Dodge cars are handled in Mansfield by Colby and Earick, 76 West Third street.

* * *

Campaign.

Carrying the story of "the first cars with conditioned air for winter driving," the Nash Motor corporation this week began the most extensive advertising campaign in Nash history. The advertising, much of which will be carried by newspapers, will be designed to fit the needs of individual dealers in various parts of the country, according to C. H. Bliss, director of sales. Five other outstanding developments of the 1938 Nash will be featured in the advertising. The Nash-LaFayette Sales and Service at 70 North Diamond street, is the Nash dealer in Mansfield.

* * *

Safe Driving.

The Studebaker corporation, pioneer in the safe driving movement, is co-operating with national organizations to promote improved automobile lighting for safer driving at nights. All Studebaker dealers, including the Auxter Motor company, 220 Park avenue west, have been advised to join in a drive to curb faulty headlights by suggesting that car owners have lighting facilities checked periodically. Dealers use special equipment to adjust the lights and detect faults.

* * *

Economy.

Figures compiled by officials of Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., show that the average driver can operate a Willys car for a year at cost of around $72 for gasoline, provided he drives at a reasonable speed and not more than 12,000 miles. The savings on gasoline by the use of the Willys car is especially noticeable in the case of firms which supply their salesmen with cars and pay the maintenance cost, it was pointed out. In a recent economy test, the 500 leaders averaged 37.5 miles per gallon of gas with Willys cars. The Willys dealer in Mansfield is Terman motors, 64 North Franklin avenue.

* * *

Features.

The new DeSoto is built on a three-inch longer wheelbase and has a number of improvements. Dealers, including Light and McElroy, 161 Park avenue east, point to the wide-set headlights in the fenders, the adjustable front seat for short and tall drivers, the new and stronger frame, the sound-proof body, larger brakes, quicker pick-up, and the inside safety features which protect driver and passengers in the event of an accident. The instrument panel has no projecting controls to cut or bruise if passengers are thrown forward and the handbrake lever is between the driver and his companion, convenient for either to reach in case of emergency.

Prices Up.

Prices of the new Chevrolet models, introduced only a few days ago, represent increases ranging from 3.4 per cent to 5 per cent, which the manufacturers attribute to the increasing costs of labor and raw materials. The smallest increase is on the popular sedan model in the Master De-Luxe series which jumped from $770 to $796. The $34 top change in price is on the Master Sport sedan which sells for $817 at the factory. The Mohican Chevrolet company, 140 Park avenue east, displays the latest models in Mansfield.

SUES FOR TAXES

Treasurer Asks Foreclosure of 12 Lots to Collect $5,185.

Foreclosure action on 12 Mansfield suburban lots to collect $5,185 in delinquent taxes and penalties had been started today against the Farmers Savings and Trust company as trustee, by County Treasurer John E. Kolb.

The petition, filed in common pleas court by Atty. Marshall C. Moore, special assistant prosecutor, lists delinquencies over a period of eight years on the properties. Six of the lots are in Roseland, three in Coolridge heights and three in Lincoln heights.

SHIES AT ALTAR

Prospective Groom Had 'Cold Feet' Pastor Tells Clerk.

GRAYSON, Ky.—(INS)—County Clerk Carl M. Jaynes lifted his eyebrows recently when he received a marriage return from a minister marked "void" and bearing the following notation:

"In all my experience this is the first time I have seen this happen. He led her to the altar and then just before the ceremony said: 'I've got cold feet'."

Ask Hitler to 'Umpire' Sino-Jap Peace Negotiations

CHINA, JAPAN TO INVITE AID OF GERMANY

Chancellor Takes Steps on Basis of Informal Pleas From Both Sides.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

BERLIN—(AP)—Germany fully expected today to steal a march on the Brussels conference, which she declined to attend, and settle the Chinese-Japanese war herself.

Preliminary informal requests from both China and Japan for Chancellor Hitler to act as an umpire in their four-months-old conflict were regarded by Germany as so bona fide that Hitler, according to a source close to the Chancellery, ordered Diplomat Joachim Von Ribbentrop to return post haste from Rome to undertake preliminary negotiations.

More Time Needed.

German sources conceded that considerable time might yet elapse before an official announcement of Hitler's pivotal role could be made.

They also admitted that the fortunes of war might so turn that plans for mediation would have to be postponed.

But they were fully convinced that if anyone could settle the far eastern difficulties as an impartial outsider it was Germany. While making no secret of her friendship for Japan, the Reich at at the same time has been careful to maintain good relations with China.

Moreover China is indebted to Germany because of the German military experts who have aided her and because Germany has renounced all claims to extraterritoriality for her nationals in China.

Before accepting the role of mediator, however, sources close to the chancellery said Hitler wanted to make absolutely sure that his judgment would be accepted unquestioningly.

Favorable To Germany.

Discussing the projected action with several German publicists, this writer found high hope that the German colonial question would assume an entirely new aspect, favorable to Germany, as a result of the Chinese-Japanese bid to Hitler.

Britain, these men believed, might prove far less uncompromising in the matter of Germany's desire for return of colonies lost as a result of the World war when she realized Germany, as mediator of far eastern conflict, would have it in her hands to freeze out Britain commercially in such sections as those in North China now occupied by Japanese troops.

Dims Prospects for Mid-Term G. O. P. Parley

Up and Down THE STREET

J. G. (Gil) Baird may have to go into mass production on his more-or-less famous and questionably efficient Baird Helping-Hand Golf Guide. A picture of the device is shown in the November issue of Tide, national advertising magazine. Beside it stand Baird, looking proud, and The News-Journal staff member Robert E. Rogers, looking puzzled. The guide consists of a parasol, flashlight, direction arrow, a wind sock, barometer, thermometer, several other strange gadgets, and a telephone (to let you keep in touch with your caddy). To use it, you have to fill out a prepared form, which even includes the current coffee quotations in Singapore. Baird, sales promotion manager at Westinghouse, says the gadget effectively eliminates golfing alibis, if conscientiously used.

Even if he did get his seasons mixed a little, Councilman-at-large James E. Crum was equal to the occasion when called on unexpectly for a vocal solo last night at a Westinghouse dinner program at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. He came through with "Easter Parade" and got a big hand, but he got a bigger reception when he was presented by J. G. Baird, master of ceremonies, as "one of the select group of Republicans who survived the Democratic landslide Tuesday."

Richland Fails to Qualify For Federal Corn Loans.

Because Richland county is not among the top-ranking corn producing counties in the state, farmers here probably will not participate in the $75,000,000 federal fund made available for corn loans, County Agent George B. Ganyard said today.

"No machinery for the handling of the loans has been set up here and I have no information that there is likely to be any money available for Richland farmers," he said. "Most of the farmers here raise only enough corn for their own use, with only a small amount going into the markets."

The loans, available only to farmers participating in the federal soils conservation program, are expected to prevent early glutting of the markets by farmers who are forced to sell their crop at harvest time in order to obtain cash. Loans ranging from 44 to 50 cents a bushel and would mature in 10 months. They will be available after Dec. 1 and until April 1, 1938.

So far, the only counties in this area which have qualified for the loans are Crawford, Marion and Union.

DELAYED BY ARGUMENTS, HAHN CASE TO REACH JURY TODAY

CINCINNATI—Anna Marie Hahn neared today the climax of her fight for life.

With perhaps only four hours left for completion of final arguments by state and defense, there was prospect that a jury of eleven women and one man would begin deliberations late today on the charge the stolid native German murdered Jacob Wagner, an elderly gardener, by poison.

Extended arguments by state and defense counsel abolished earlier hopes that the case would have reached the jury some time yesterday.

Prosecutor Dudley Miller Outcalt at the outset of the trial nearly four weeks ago demanded that the woman be sentenced to die in the electric chair.

The 31-year-old mother fixed a steady gaze upon Outcalt as he asserted she committed "a cycle of crimes for gain."

Chief defense counsel Joseph H. Hoodin, in mocking voice, attacked Outcalt's statement and said:

"This is the type of woman Outcalt, the actor, has attempted to portray. This is now a show."

Outcalt pictured her a "smart and clever woman," Hoodin said, "but do you think if this is true she would have administered poison in full view of the neighbors?"

The small-featured defense attorney declared that although "none of the state's 95 witnesses lied," the power of suggestion had played an important part in their testimony.

"I don't contend that Mrs. Hahn is an angel or a righteous woman," Hoodin asserted, "but there is a big difference between the crimes of stealing, gambling and forging checks and the crime of murder."

The organization meetings in the townships will open with an election Saturday night at the Bellville Grange hall. Others will be held Monday night at the township houses in Sandusky and Franklin townships.

ACTS IN FIGHT ON COAL BOARD

Roosevelt Calls Conference With Commission to End Factional Split.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Roosevelt took the unusual step today of calling in the entire bituminous coal commission, apparently to discuss the difficulties which have split the seven members into two factions.

No details accompanied the White House announcement of the meeting, set for 12:15 p. m. (EST).

Charles F. Hosford, jr., chairman of the coal commission, announced on Wednesday he had requested the president to relieve him of his post as soon as the commission fixes minimum coal prices. That probably will be about Dec. 15 or Jan. 1, he said.

Hosford's announcement said personal circumstances alone prompted his resignation.

Dissension over personnel appointments and other management policies have divided the commission into groups of four and three. Commissioner J. C. Lewis, one of the minority faction, a few weeks ago asked the assistance of Senator Herring (D-Iowa) in obtaining the names, salaries, and addresses of the 900 commission employes.

The majority group consists of C. E. Smith of West Virginia, who has handled most of the personnel work; Thomas S. Haymond, former Kentucky coal operator; Walter H. Maloney of Kansas City, and Hosford.

In the minority are Pleas E. Greenlee of Indiana, Percy Tetlow of Ohio, and Lewis of Iowa. The latter two were officers of the United Mine Workers.

CRANE, Mo.—(AP)—Alba Williams has first hand knowledge now on the reproduction abilities of the catfish.

He tossed five fish into a pond near his home five years ago.

Two years ago he had to call on the game warden for help. There were so many catfish in the pond it was seriously overstocked. The warden removed 1,500.

Now Williams is asking the warden's aid again. Once more the pond has too many fish.

LANDON'S STAND CLINCHES FIGHT, OPPONENTS SAY

Kansan, Knox Both Lukewarm to Proposal; Committee In Session Today.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Alf M. Landon's lukewarm attitude toward a projected mid-term Republican convention and outspoken opposition from other party leaders dimmed prospects for an affirmative decision on the proposal at the national committee sessions today.

The party's 1936 presidential nominee and titular leader defined his position on the eve of the meeting, declaring the time was not propitious for calling a convention. A similar view was taken by his 1936 running mate, Col. Frank Knox.

Claim Fight's Won.

Opponents of the convention plan regarded Landon's declaration as a clincher to their fight. Rep. Joseph Martin of Massachusetts, chairman of the congressional committee and a leading opponent of the convention proposal, predicted the national committee would not authorize an interim conference.

National Chairman John D. Hamilton, who, along with former President Hoover, advocated a mid-term conference, declined to comment on Landon's expression.

Hamilton asserted decision should be deferred until a policy committee could report on the advisability of an off-year convention. He voiced a hope that creation of a policy group of 75 to 100 members, by whatever method the national committe decided, would be the first step toward a party conference to plan for the 1938 and 1940 elections.

The chairman said in a press conference that in the event a convention were held delegates should consist of "the national committee, the policy committee, the state chairmen and state women vice chairman, the more than 5,000 county chairmen, every Republican senator and congressman, every elected state officers and all members of the legislatures, and every man or woman who ran for national, state, or legislative office."

OPEN NEW COURT REFORM STUDY

Solons To Conduct Inquiry In U. S. Judicial System.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Members of a senate subcommittee began gathering today—nine months from the day President Roosevelt offered his court reorganization bill—to start a fresh study of the issues raised by that proposal.

Whether the judiciary issue is revived in congress may depend on their findings. President Roosevelt has given no indication of his own intentions.

The committee was ordered by the senate to study the whole judicial system and all the proposals made last spring for revising it. The members would have the right to recommend passage of the original Roosevelt bill or any substitute.

The Great Game of Politics

—By FRANK R. KENT

ONE OF THE BEST examples of why conferences of the so-called peace-seeking nations have been futile to halt the offensive activities of the treaty-breaking, aggressor nations was given the other day in the curious display of anxiety of the United States and Great Britain to disclaim responsibility for having initiated the idea of calling together the nine powers which in 1922 signed a pact guaranteeing the territorial integrity of China.

IT IS perfectly clear that the conference, as have all such conferences, inevitably will be dominated by the United States and Great Britain, acting together. It is equally apparent that the gathering now being held at Brussels would not have taken place at all except upon the initiative of either America or England, or both. Nothing can or will be done there except through English and American initiative, which conceded fact makes it manifestly absurd to say the initiative for the conone else. This being the indisputable fact, it is difficult to understand the excessive fear among the diplomats of these two dominant countries lest it be publicly acknowledged that they were the real instigators of, and are the real forces in the conference.

THIS ISN'T A secret at all. Every intelligent person, whatever his nationality, is fully aware of it, which makes their timidity all the more striking. A couple of days ago, when Mr. Anthony Eden was quoted as saying that the initiative had come from the United States, our State department was reported as "greatly shocked" and "seriously upset." One paper asserted that officials were "speechless with astonishment." A day later, Under Secretary Sumner Welles, in a very guarded statement, declared his great gratification that clarifying cables had made it clear that Mr. Eden did not say the suggestion for the conference had come from us, but only that we had suggested Brussels as a good place to meet. Thus the department's inarticulate agitation was allayed and the shock absorbed. However, the next day when it was proposed to give the honor of presiding over the conference to the American chairman, Mr. Norman Davis, that gentleman hastily and firmly declined—made it plain he wouldn't touch the job with a ten-foot pole. Neither would Mr. Eden.

THIS EXTREME eagerness upon the part of the dominating delegations from the strong countries to refrain from publicly supplying the leadership of conferences such as the one at Brussels, and which they unquestionably run, undoubtedly is one reason these conferences have so often had almost completely negligible results, and why the Brussels conference is not likely to take any clear cut, definite action. The attitude of the English and Americans, now that the conference is on, is hard to reconcile with reason. The keen apprehension upon the part of the State department lest some one believe that we took the lead in proposing a conference does not harmonize at all with the bold words of President Roosevelt's Chicago speech, in which he flayed aggressor nations and spoke of "quarantine" as an effective remedy which might be employed.

THE NATURAL follow-up of that speech for us was to propose just the conference that is now being held and in that conference, concerning which we, of course, had preliminary conversations with the British, it was just as natural for us to take the lead. Yet, we exhibit not only fright but indignation at the bare suggestion that we thought of the conference first and our representative sternly puts aside the request that he preside. And the British are equally shy of coming forward.

IT DOES NOT make sense. This calculated refusal of England and America to accept responsibility for a conference for which everyone knows they are responsible, or openly to direct from the front proceedings which everyone knows they are directing from the rear, does not create an impression of either candor or courage. Perhaps it may be inexpedient to take strong measures toward Japan for her clear treaty violation and perhaps the wiser course will be to urge, as is now forecast, that Japan and China get together, stop fighting and arrange a peace. But, if that isn't pretty close to futility, what is it? The truth is that the extraordinary delicacy with which both our own and the British diplomats move at these conferences, their reluctance to assume responsibility and the fear that somehow one or the other will be put "on the spot" for doing or suggesting what not only is the natural thing but the indubitably right thing, weakens the whole cause of international co-operation. It does more than that—it almost insures a pussyfooting conference and diminishes respect for whatever action may be taken.

THE INEXCUSABLE thing about this timidity upon the part of these two nations is that it is so unnecessary. It certainly isn't essential to soothe the feelings or appease the pride of the other conferring nations, which are more than willing to follow and not at all anxious to lead. And it does not fool anyone. What it does, however, is convince the aggressor nations that neither England nor America is prepared to play the combined hand boldly for what it is worth—that both can be bluffed.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLWOOD—Strange it may be, but the person most vitally concerned in a movie love scene is neither of the principals but the director.

Your stars, unless they're very new at the business, may be quite blase about exchanging osculations and embraces for the camera, but your director never is. His realization of the importance of sincere and beautiful love scenes to his picture makes him, for the time, a Lothario without portfolio. He knows so thoroughly the mood he wants that you are sure, watching his sideline excitement, he could give a better performance than his stars.

* * *

Sometimes he does, too—better and funnier. That is when he undertakes to "show them how." Archie Mayo frequently acts out scenes to demonstrate the effects he wants. Archie weighs around 200, unless he's reduced some more. He did not take Gary Cooper's place with Sigrid Gurie in the "Marco Polo" rehearsals, but he would recite the love lines to himself, and the replies, emphasizing the desired inflection. Archie thinks inflection is the big thing in movie love passages.

Michael Curtiz, excitable Hungarian, does not "act out" movie romantics. He comments, criticizes, suggests. "That kiss—she would not melt butter. Don't hold her like she was a hot potato. Crush her. Maybe you break a rib. That is all right if we get a good scene!"

DeMille, hawk-eyed on every scene, is the same when his players must make love. Sometimes he uses ridicule along with blandishments to spur them into the "mood." Another showman-director, Von Sternberg, has found ridicule useful.

* * *

Busby Berkeley belongs to the act-it-out school. He acts it out in rehearsals, then during the "take" he stands behind the camera, going through the motions while his players perform before the lens.

Irving Cummings, once an actor himself, uses the soft voice method, and beams benignly as he watches his scene, step by step. You can almost hear him as he mentally reads the lines. Mervyn LeRoy's that way too.

Ernst Lubitsch lets out the actor in him occasionally. It's funniest when he emotes through a love scene with his cigar in his mouth—to demonstrate an inflection, a matter of timing, a movement of the head or arm he wants.

Gigantic William Dieterle—in achievement as in stature, what with "Zola" behind him—gets excited. He has been known to walk up and down the set, between scenes, waving arms over his head and shouting: "No, no. You luff her. You understand? Make it real, make it honest. Giff me more, more closer, more enthusiasm, more luff!"

And he gets it—more "closer" and more "luff."

Man's Wife And Babies Leave Him

By VIRGINIA LEE

A young husband writes me a long letter and says I may publish it or answer in any manner I wish. This letter is rather long to print, and maybe I can summarize it.

He married "one of the finest girls I have ever known," five years ago. She loved him enough to leave her home in a large city and go to the desert with him.

She, however, could not cook even the simplest foods, and could not stand the housework, so used to visit her mother very often. The young couple (she was 19, he 22) had many quarrels, which were usually over his wife's inability to keep house.

There are now three children, a boy of three and two girls, 14 months and four months. Housekeepers have been doing the work recently, and mostly have been good, but the last one, hired when the wife was hospitalized, drank, smoked and kept late hours with different men, and when our husband objected, she left, wearing his wife's clothing, and saying that she would "get even."

Shortly after this the wife left with the children, and since has sued him for divorce. She is living very near this last housekeeper, and he fears her influence upon his wife and children.

This young husband and father only is allowed to see his children twice a week and for an hour each time. The little boy, he says, likes to be with his dad all the time. He has offered his wife a home where he is now living, and wants to know how to get his family back. He is a "self-made" man, having worked his way through high school and college, is successful in his work, and has an exemplary personal record.

Your wife's mother was to blame for letting her daughter marry with no knowledge of cooking or keeping house. You were both so young, too, and may be excused at first for having some difficulty in adjusting yourselves. You had love, however. Too bad you almost killed it by childish quarrels and misunderstanding.

It is hard to know who was the most to blame. You should have had patience and tried to teach her what you knew about housekeeping, if anything. And she should have used all her intelligence to learn to do her job. After all, anyone with a will to learn can master the details of housekeeping. However, the babies came pretty fast, and possibly you did not realize what a physical and nervous strain that was to her, or you would have been more patient and understanding.

Will you do this: Try to look, without prejudice at your own conduct all through your married life? Strive to put yourself in your wife's place and see if you criticized her too severely and too often. If you are honest with yourself you may see that you are not blameless, so then ask her to forgive and come back to you. Forget her faults, and if you get her and the children back, try to understand her problems in the home and with the children and to work with her to make a happy home for the babies.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

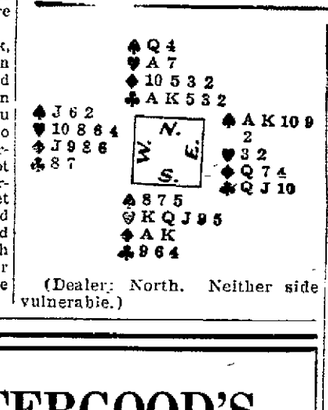
"The Authority on Authorities"



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

AN EARLY INVESTMENT

The "duck" is a play which is absolutely essential sometimes in order to make a contract. It consists of giving up an early trick in a suit so that all of the remaining tricks in it can be won. There are situations in which a suit cannot be brought home by any other means, just as there are contracts which cannot be made except by bringing in the suit.

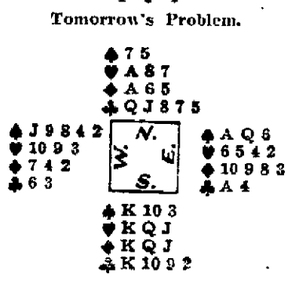
After North's opening bid of 1-Club, East overcalled with 1-Spade. South bid 2-Hearts, North 3-Clubs, South 3-Hearts and North 4-Hearts.

West led the spade J, which was covered by the Q and K. East switched to a trump, which declarer won in dummy with the A. Three more rounds of trumps exhausted the hostile ones and a club was now led and ducked. However, two more spades were now cashed and the contract set.

Where the contract was correctly played, the declarer won the trump return on the second lead with the A and, realizing that he could not ruff a losing spade, as a trump would be shot back as soon as he lost the lead, played a small club from dummy, immediately giving up a trick in that suit, in order to establish clubs for one spade loser while he still retained a trump in dummy. When East won the club, he returned another trump, but the contract was now safe.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

What defense by East-West sets South's 3-No Trump contract after the lead of the spade 4?

One cupful of prunes that have been soaked over night, pitted, chopped and added to 1½ cupfuls of bread crumbs makes a delicious stuffing for roast duck. Moisten stuffing with cold water.

When cleaning you refrigerator use one tablespoon of sal soda to four quarts of cold water. This will keep the drain pipe clean and free.

Jump Rope To Keep Slim Figure

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

In Hollywood, I am told, there is a craze for rope-jumping. According to my informant, there are more big girls skipping rope along the boulevards than there are youngsters. There are many of our famous cinema stars among these rope-jumping enthusiasts.

For the girl that needs to reduce, I would advocate exercise rather than harmful starvation dieting, for exercise is excellent for weight reduction. Proper exercising, you see, not only breaks up fatty tissues and stimulates the circulation to carry away the oxidized fat, but also helps to keep the body firm and lithe at the same time. Exercise not only helps in the reducing process, but also tends to mold the body along symmetrical lines. And what I can't understand is why some women wait until they have become fat and shapeless before they think of resorting to exercise. If they were wise, they would exercise daily, in order to keep their bodies slender and attractive.

Some exercises, of course, are so involved that women neglect them through lack of time or interest, but exercise can really be enjoyable. Rope jumping is good, and I've just unearthed an exercise that somewhat duplicates this sport and yet is so simple that no woman should find it difficult to practice it every day.

Keeps One Slim

This simple exercise is ideal for keeping the body slim, supple, slender and well proportioned. Of course, the woman who is a great deal overweight requires a more thorough reducing routine, but even she can derive benefits from this exercise if she is faithful in its execution.

The exercise to which I refer consists merely of jumping up from the floor 100 times each morning and 100 times each evening. The first 50 jumps should be done easily and lightly. The next 25 should be done more vigorously. The next 25 should be done by jumping as high from the floor as possible.

Do not jump the full 100 times when you first begin doing this exercise, however. Start with 25 jumps, and then gradually increase the number day by day, until you hit the 100 mark. You'll find that this exercisce will stimulate your circulation, and will assist greatly in keeping your body firm, lithe and symmetrical.

If you can, however, use a real jumping rope, for you'll get much more fun out of it. It will send the blood coursing swiftly through your entire body. It will leave you as flushed and glowing as it does your youngster or your kid sister, and it will make you feel almost as young. So cut yourself a piece of rope, if you'd preserve your youthfulness, and skip your way to figure loveliness!

My Neighbor Says:

Do not keep frost bitten plants in a warm room and do not water them for two or three days. Put them in a cool dark place until they thaw and use only lukewarm water when watering.

When basting velvet if a silk thread is used no mark will be left on the velvet.

If spoon is dipped into hot liquid each time before putting into dough when making dumplings, dough will not stick to spoon.

Candies and cookies "shrink" upon standing, so pack them securely with plenty of waxed paper in boxes to be sent away.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Dicky stared and then gave a delighted chuckle as I told him that his mother had counselled me not to wait, but to tell my father of the proposed "royal invasion."

"What a gorgeous liar you are!" he said admiringly. "But then you really had to double for Sapphira this trip. It never would have been done to let the mater know that she was not the first one to stick her nose in the feed box of news."

"As it happens I didn't have to tell a real lie at all," I said with pretended hauteur. "After I had told her about it, and she had enthusiastically approved, she asked me what you said to the scheme, Father.

"I told her that I hoped you would be as nice about it as she had been, and then went on to talk about your having your own rooms, and being able to keep to yourself so that they probably wouldn't bother you much. She evidently was satisfied with my answer, for she didn't ask me a direct question about it."

Story of Jewels.

"Poor, belabored Satan!" Dicky sighed. "The way you beat him around the well-known stump, I doubt if he has a place on his body the size of a dime that isn't black and blue. But more power to you! My mother's a wonderful woman, but anybody that can handle her ought to have the Croix de Guerre."

"Margaret evidently has succeeded very well," my father said, smiling, "and you may depend upon me never to reveal that I knew of the impending visit before she did. And now, what else is there that you think I ought to know?"

Dicky looked at me.

"You tell him, Madge," he said. "You had the dope directly from the old girl herself."

"It's about her jewels," I said, but this time he did not echo the word, as he had when I had said "emeralds," and I knew that he was saving me from the admission that I had inadvertently begun to tell him something that Dicky and I had agreed to tell him together.

Missing Jewel Bag.

"She left most of them in the castle," I began, and then told him rapidly of Olga's melodramatic recital of that last day in her old home when she had hidden most of her jewels, together with money and valuable papers, in the vault so far underground that even the razing of the building would not affect it, and the secret of which was known only to herself.

Then I told him of the necklace of emeralds and a few other jewels, with a little store of money, which the maid, Felice, had sewn in a bag and attached to her gown, and which had been ripped from the dress when the queen looked for it after the faithful maid had been killed.

So that he would not have to waste time in questions, I told him in detail how Olga had seen the bag just a few minutes before Felice had been separated from them: how she had seen that the bag was ripped from the gown, not torn, as if it had been snatched hastily from her. I told of Katherine's theory that Felice had ripped it away herself, had endeavored to hide it somewhere on the boat, and had died before she could tell her mistress where.

My father's brows were drawn together when I finished.

"I doubt if there were a cranny anywhere where the maid could hide the bag without one of those devils finding it," my father said. "And yet, all of them, with two exceptions, were searched to the skin, dead and living alike.

"Of course, I shall send directions at once about that boat of the conspirators, now held by the government men. I shall have it gone over with a fine comb. If the maid hid that bag of jewels on the boat, and it is still there, we'll find it."

He stopped and fitted his finger tips together, a mannerism which I always have known denotes that he is making a decision.

Will Go Himself.

"On second thought," he said, "I think I shall take those directions instead of sending them. Those emeralds are world famous, fabulous in value. There's no use broadcasting the fact that they're lost."

He stopped, and looked at us intently.

"If they are on board the boat, the quest is a comparatively easy one. If, however, they are on either of the two men whose bodies were not searched, the task is almost impossible.

"One of those exceptions lies at the bottom of the ocean. He is the man who carried Richard overboard and his body has never been recovered. But some way I do not believe he had the emeralds. He was too purely a fanatic to bother with them. But the other exception—"

His intent look traveled over our faces, and something in his expression made me catch my breath with a sudden, fantastic conjecture. Did I know the name of the "other exception?"

Melba Toast
Cookies Milk

DINNER

Broiled Hame Baked Peaches
Baked Potatoes Squash
Raw Carrot Strips
Apple Pie Cheese Coffee

Even the reducer may indulge in the luncheon menu of salad and Melba toast, if she does not eat too many cookies to make up the lost calories. Bananas and milk are a notoriously good combination of foods, recommended by dieticians and physicians. The dinner menu is baked in the oven, the broiler being used for the ham, and may also be used for the peaches which are halved, stoned and either baked or broiled, to be served around the meat on the platter. Bake the squash in its shell, and serve with plenty of butter and seasoned with pepper and salt. Fresh apple pie is my favorite dessert.

Today's Recipes.

BANANA TRICORNE SALAD. —Quarter a peeled ripe banana by cutting once crosswise and once lengthwise. Arrange three of the banana quarters to form a triangle on each salad plate. Pile canned or fresh cherries or purple grapes in the center of the triangle. Cut canned pineapple rounds into halves, and arrange three or four overlapping in a row at "apex" of banana triangle. Place wedges of cheese on each side of the bananas and garnish with greens. Serve with French dressing.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, Nov. 6.

A VERY lively and prosperous day is forecast from the predominant planetary positions, although these good auspices have a menace of subtlety, treachery or other sinister manifestations. It might be well to be alert for such possible wiles in all manner of dealings.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a lively and progressive year, with much of benefit, although business may unearth some menaces of craft, duplicity or secret enmity. Be wise with corporations, rings and secret societies.

A child born on this day may be lively, talented and fairly ambitious, although with strong leanings to a fashionable life, with much social or romantic activity, in which it may be a shining light.

FORESTRY WORK OF U. S. PRAISED

America's 'Last Frontier' Consists of 170,000,000 Acres of Trees.

NEW HAVEN, Conn. —(U.P.)— America's "last frontier" now comprises 170 million acres of federal protected forests in the west and Alaska, according to Henry S. Graves, dean of Yale School of Forestry.

Graves, returning from an inspection tour with Gifford Pinchot, founder of the national forest system, and Herbert A. Smith, associated with the U. S. forest service for 25 years, contrasted conditions in western forests today with those before creation of a federal forest preservation.

"Much progress has been made in recent years," he said, "in organized methods of fire protection and in technique of silviculture, controlled grazing of livestock and handling of recreation and wildlife. This advance is due not only to very efficient administration by technical men trained in forest schools but also to the fact that the work is based on science and technology."

This vast domain, he said, "is the last of the American frontier, now being made accessible by roads, trails and other improvements, and providing timber and other resources produced under constructive methods of conservation."

WOMEN FORM SYMPHONY

ST. LOUIS—(U.P.)—Formation of an all-women's symphony orchestra has begun here. It will be composed of professional and amateur musicians, and will present several concerts each year.

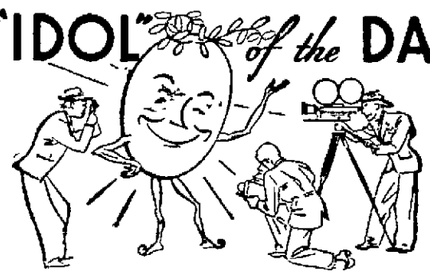
GIRL, 16, PRINTER

FORT YATES, N. D.—(U.P.)—Francine Fiske, the 16-year-old daughter of Frank B. Fiske, publisher of the Fort Yates Pioneer-Arrow, became one of the nation's youngest printers when she replaced the regular printer in her father's shop, while the printer went on a vacation.

The "IDOL" of the DAY!



Its gay red color and tart-sweet flavor makes Fresh Cranberry Sauce front page news to lovers of good food. Quickly made this way:

1 pound or quart (4 cups) cranberries — 2 cups water — 1½ to 2 cups sugar

Method: Boil sugar and water together 5 minutes; add cranberries and boil without stirring (5 minutes is usually sufficient) until all the skins pop open. Remove from the fire when the popping stops, and allow the sauce to remain in vessel undisturbed until cool.

Put up Ten-Minute Cranberry Sauce in Sterilized jars — pouring the sauce hot into the jars and sealing tightly. Keep in a dark, cool place for future use.

Surgeon Stitches Rupture In Boy's Heart, Replaces It

YOUNGSTOWN — (U.P.)—A 15-year-old boy was alive and well after a doctor had lifted out his heart and stitched a deep puncture in the right chamber.

The boy is Eric Sucher, who was accidentally stabbed in the heart while playing with other boys. The surgeon was Dr. W. C. Mermis, who found the boy's heart had been ruptured after he had been carried to his office.

Dr. Mermis cut through the boy's chest, picked up the pulsating heart to steady it and then placed the stitches in an operation that required 90 minutes.

At Southside hospital it was said the youth was in "good shape" and would soon be able to return to school.

TALKER AT 3

Boy Prodigy Started Speaking at 3 Months, Mother Says.

KENMORE, N. Y.—(U.P.)—The 3-year-old Harry W. Rettke, jr., of Kenmore may be a child prodigy but "he's not going to be spoiled."

The child's mother, Mrs. Harry Rettke, explained that Harry, jr., is as large, as tall and as mentally developed as the average child of 6.

"He began speaking at six months and hasn't stopped yet," said the proud mother. "He knew 393 words at 18 months and 16 of them were German—I counted them."

Mrs. Rettke and her husband, a restaurant proprietor, began to take notice of their stocky son's rapid development when a doctor advised them his 20 teeth at 14 months was "unusual."

BLAMES '3-H'S'

Judge Says Hooch, Haste, Hugging Causes for Auto Crashes.

OGDEN, Utah.—(U.P.)—Judge Hyrum A. Belnap blames the three H's for motor accidents. "It is this court's experience," he said from the bench, "that 85 per cent of all automobile accidents are caused by one or a combination of the three H's—hooch, haste and hugging."

A Kiss For Victor Over Labor Candidate

—International Ill. News Photo.

Here's the victory token from Mrs. Reading and daughter for Detroit's new Mayor, Richard W. Reading. The former City Clerk, running as a conservative, defeated his labor rival, Patrick H. O'Brien, sponsored by the C. I. O. Labor will still control the Michigan city, as O'Brien and five other labor aspirants were elected to the City Council.

REVERSES MAIL FRAUD VERDICT AGAINST WOMAN IN GABLE CASE

SAN FRANCISCO—(U.P.)—The ninth district court of appeals has reversed the decision of the Los Angeles federal court which convicted Mrs. Violet Wells Norton, middle-aged Canadian on a charge of mail fraud in connection with her attempt to establish movie actor Clark Gable as father of her daughter.

Mrs. Norton now is serving a one-year term in Orange county jail. Under the decision she will be released and allowed to return to Canada.

The court held Mrs. Norton was not involved in a scheme to defraud Gable when she wrote the actor asking him to aid her in supporting the child.

The court ruled that both Gable and Mrs Norton were unaware of fraud at the time the letters were written.

"There can be no fraud when neither party is aware of its existence," the court ruled.

TASTY DISHES NOT ONLY MATTER OF COOKING, BUT OF SELECTION

Appetizing food is not only a matter of money and good cooking, but of carefully selecting it at the markets, and some of the most nutritious and best fruits and vegetables are among the less expensive.

Eggs are plentiful right now and although higher than summer prices, make an economical and satisfactory meat substitute. Meat prices are slightly lower, with the exception of beef—especially noticable in smoked meats and pork chops—and fish is plentiful and reasonable.

Fruits of the winter variety are exceptionally nice; there are all kinds of grapefruit, including the pink seedless from Texas; California and Florida oranges; all kinds of grapes, the newest variety the Emperor from California; Bartlett pears, honey dew and Thurlock cantaloupes, fresh pine apples, tangerines, and cranberries.

Spinach, which does not flourish in hot weather, is now plentiful. Other leafy greens suggested by a visit to the towntown and neighborhood markets are kale, broccoli, mustard greens, romaine, butter and head lettuce, endive and Fench endive. Three or four kinds of cabbage is also offered.

Among the vegetables that grow under the ground are celery and parsley roots, salsify, carrots, beets, parsnips, turnips and new winter potatoes.

A number of markets will have asparagus, okra, cucumbers, and cauliflower for the week-end. The latter will be found among the cheaper vegetables this week.

Crowd of 50,000 Expected For Headline Battle on State Card.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS — (AP)—Ohio State and Indiana's Hoosiers were to wind up training today for Saturday's Big Ten grid clash at Ohio stadium—a game sertain to boost the Bucks toward a new all-time high for a season's attendance, and possibly nudge them a notch closer to the Western conference championship.

The Indiana Blackshirts arrived at 11:30 a. m. by train. Practice sessions were booked by both teams during the afternoon.

Defensive Scrap.

Ohio was the slightest of favorites, and the battle loomed as a defensive scrap all the way. Ohio has surrendered but 13 points in five games, while Indiana has watched but three touchdowns scamper across its goal.

The Bucks have played to 250,706 fans this season, an average of 50,000 per game despite the puny 9,650 which saw the Chicago massacre in the Windy City a week ago. Saturday's fray was expected to attract about 50,000, next week's Illinois encounter about 60,000, and the finale at Michigan another 50,000. Those estimates would give the Bucks a total attendance of about 410,000 for the eight games, as compared with the all-time high of 391,371 reached a year ago.

Indiana has not defeated Ohio since 1924, when the final count was 12 to 7, but the Hoosiers tied in 1929 and 1932. In 21 starts against the Indiana club, Ohio has won 12, tied three and lost six. Last year the Bucks copped by a 7 to 0 count.

Both teams were in good shape for the fray. George Miller, star center, and Bill Anderson, halfback, who have been on the shelf for the Hoosiers, are expected to be in for at least a part of the game, while the entire Ohio team was rated as "ready."

While the Bucks and Hoosiers battle it out here, plenty of football is booked on other Ohio gridirons. Among the headliners are the clashes between Dayton's unbeaten-untied juggernaut and Toledo's Rockets, and between Baldwin-Wallace and Case, leaders of the Ohio conference chase in which each is unbeaten and untied.

Bishops at Miami.

Ohio Wesleyan goes to Miami, and Ohio U. to Cincinnati for the Buckeye conference tilts, with heaviest interest showered on the former. A year ago Miami, winner of five straight, ran into Wesleyan which had lost five in a row, and the Redskins were dropped 13 to 0, the defeat costing them a clear Buckeye crown. They'll be out to avenge that defeat, but Wesleyan, after a poor start, appears on the way back.

Other games are: Oberlin at Wooster, Findlay at Kent State, Wittenberg at Bowling Green, Mt. Union at Denison, Muskingum at Ohio Northern, Capital at Heidelberg, Western Reserve at Syracuse, Olivet at John Carroll, Hiram at Otterbein, Kenyon at Lake Forest, Davis & Elkins at Akron, Wilberforce at Lincoln U., Bluffton at Defiance, W. & J. at Marietta, and Creighton at Xavier.

Pitt-Notre Dame Collision Holds Gridiron Spotlight

Irish Should Offer Panthers Stout Opposition In 12th Meeting In South Bend Saturday.

By HENRY SUPER

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—The gridiron spotlight swings Saturday to South Bend where the steadily climbing Irish of Notre Dame encounter Pittsburgh's mighty Panthers in the headline game of the day.

Although beaten by Carnegie Tech and tied by Illinois, the Irish finally have begun to click and should offer the Panthers stout opposition in the 12th game of this series.

Elsewhere the early November battling finds important conference games featuring the program.

The handful of perfect record elevens all have tough assignments. California, the giant of the Pacific Coast, meets Washington, defending champions. Baylor, unbeaten in the southwest, plays Texas. Colorado meets Utah U. and Montana encounters Gonzaga in feature games in the Rocky Mountain sector. Unbeaten Santa Clara has a breather in San Jose State. Unbeaten Alabama tangles with Tulane in the feature game of the Southeastern conference while the last perfect record eleven, Lafayette, has a strong foe in Rutgers.

Fordham Faces Purdue.

The unbeaten but tied brigade also figures in some of the day's standout battles. Fordham, tied only by Pittsburgh and already casting eyes on the Rose Bowl, faces Purdue. Yale and Dartmouth, who soiled each other's records last Saturday by battling to a 9-9 tie, respectively face Brown and Princeton. Villanova faces Marquette; Holy Cross meets Colgate; Temple, tied three times, plays Michigan State; Duke meets Dake Forest and Nebraska, tied by Oklahoma, faces Kansas, holder of the Big Six conference lead.

The program:

EAST—Fordham-Purdue tops the program. Fordham has hopes of finishing the campaign without defeat. It meets St. Mary's next and finishes up with N. Y. U. Other eastern games—Manhattan-Detroit; N. Y. U.-Lehigh; Navy-Columbia; Penn-Penn State; Army-Harvard; Syracuse-Western Reserve and Duquesne-Carnegie Tech.

MID-WEST—Notre Dame-Pittsburgh tops the list. Pittsburgh, on better record, figures to be favored. Big Ten firing is heavy with Ohio State, tied with Minnesota for the lead, meeting Indiana. Tther conference games are: Illinois-Northwestern: Minnesota-Iowa and Chicago-Michigan. Wisconsin is idle. In the Big Six, Nebraska and Kansas fight it out for the lead with Nebraska favored to win and go on to retain the title won a year ago. Oklahoma plays Iowa State in the other conference game.

SOUTH—Five games scheduled in Southeast conference, which Alabama leads with three victories and no defeats—Alabama-Tulane; Auburn-Tennessee; Florida-Georgia; L. S. U. Mississippi State and SewaneeVanderbilt. Tutside games pair: Georgia Tech-Clemson, Kentucky-South Carolina and Centenary-Texas Christian.

In the Southern conference, where Duke and V. M. I. are tied for the lead, five conference games feature the program—Duke-Wake Forest; V. M. I.-Maryland; Richmond-V. P. I.; Citadel-North Carolina State and North Carolina-Davidson.

Can Clinch Title.

SOUTHW9ST—Baylor, leading the conference with three victories and no deefats, can virtually clinch the championship by subduing Texas. Arkansas, defending champion, meets runner-up Rice and S. M. U. plays Texas Aggies.

PACIFIC COAST — California can practically cinch the Pacific Coast title if it whips defending champion Washington. Second-place Stanford meets Southern California and Washington State plays Oregon.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN—Colorado U., leading the conference with four victories faces Utah U. tied for second place with Western State, Denver and Colorado College; other conference games are: Denver-Utah State and Wyoming-Brigham Young.

Mansfield Athlete Denied Chance to Set New Javelin Record by Board's Action.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Spts. Ed.

ELMER DIALS, Mansfield high school javelin expert, will be denied a chance to win further recognition in his specialty. The event has been ruled off future track programs by the Ohio board of control. The reason for striking the event off the schedule was not revealed.

Dials is the outstanding spear tosser in Ohio scholastic ranks, and the elimination of the event wrecks his chances of lowering the record of 180 odd feet. The Mansfield boy has tossed the javelin well over that mark.

Ohio State grid clubs are assured plenty of competition the next two years. The Bucks will play the same opponents next year that they did this fall except Texas Christian. New York U. replaces the Texans. Three new foes will be added to the 1939 card. They are Minnesota, which replaces Purdue: Missouri and Cornell.

It is no longer necessary for a coach to stay on the bench to handle his team. Modern conveniences make this unnecessary. For instance, when Chicago met Ohio State, Coach Clark Shaughnessy of the Maroons did his coaching from the press coop. He relayed orders for substitutions to assistants via phone. It is easier to detect faults from points high above the field.

Big Ten football teams are again loaded with potential All-Americans. Among the leading candidates are Castelo, Illinois, and King, Minnesota, ends; Schuchbaum, Ohio State, and Schreyer, Indiana, tackles; Weld, Minnesota; Calvano, Northwestern and Sirtoskey, Indiana, guards; Wolf, Ohio State, and Miller, Indiana, centers; Davis, Indiana; Isebell, Purdue; Gmitro and Van Every, Minnesota, and Heap and Vanzo, Northwestern, backs.

Ravenna high school has a pastor assisting with the coaching in football. Rev. Stephen Kelker, who called signals for Hiram a few years back, is helping to coach the freshmen and sophomore at the school.

The Ohio high school athletic association recently released a rating of schools by officials as to the sportsmanship of the coach, school authorities, crowd and team. More than half of the schools were given the highest rating possible. Not a school was rated below two, while the lowest possible rating was five.

Included in the highest possible ranking were Butler, Fredericktown, Marion, Mt. Vernon and Shelby. Madison and Bucyrus were included in the following bracket, with Mansfield, Galion, Willard and Mt. Gilead rated a tenth of a point lower. Ashland, Bellville, Loudonville, New London and Crestline were listed in lower brackets. The poorest listings were given Bremen and Windham.

Wayne Blackburn, who got his start in semi-pro ball in this city, did right well for himself in the Three-I league last summer. In the 46 games he played with Peoria after being sent there by Waterloo of the Western league, Wayne cracked the apple at a .395 clip. It was the highest average compiled in the circuit, but, of course, he did not appear in sufficient games to become eligible for the batting championship.

Rallies To Gain 6-6 Tie

UPPER SANDUSKY — A last-period touchdown enabled Crestline high's defending championship League of Six Nations grid combine to battle Upper Sandusky to a 6-6 deadlock in a league game here Thursday. It marked the third consecutive year that the two clubs have fought to a draw.

Trailing 6 to 0 at the opening of the final stanza, the Crestline team unleashed a passing attack that carried it from midfield to a first down on the Sandusky two. Quarterback Fry smashed through center for the score.

Sandusky had grabbed the lead in the third quarter after Zimmerman returned a Crestline punt 30 yards to the Crestline 27 to set the stage. Bauer took Robey's 15-yard pass in the end zone.

ORANGEMEN CAN CINCH TITLE TIE

An opportunity to cinch at least a tie for the N. C. O. conference championship will be offered the Galion high grid machine tonight when it entertains the Marion Presidents under the arcs at Heise athletic field.

Coach Bob Corry's proteges, undefeated and untied in league competition, need triumphs over Harding and Shelby next week to win the title outright. Friday's battle marks the first time in several years that the Galion pigskin club has been a factor in the race.

The Galion-Marion tussle is the only N. C. O. game on tap this week, but three of the conference teams play hosts to non-league clubs.

Topping the bill is the Mt. Vernon-Wooster battle scheduled under the lights at Mt. Veruon tonight. The Bucyrus Redmen played Columbus Central last night.

On Saturday the Shelby Whippets clash with Tiffin Calvert at Skiles stadium. Ashland is idle this week.

Set Three New Records

Three new season records were established in the Women's bowling league at the Meder alleys last night.

The Richland Printers accounted for two of the new marks. They set a new team total record of 2212 as they took two games from the Morgan Dry Cleaners and established a new single game mark of 809.

The other new standard was hung up by Mrs. Sophia Meder who broke her individual total of 540 with a dandy 596. The Heilman Grocers won three games from the Modern Beauty Salon.

BUCYRUS' MONNETT TOPS PRO LEAGUE PASSERS

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Two individual professional football records—scoring and pass-receiving — are threatened in the National league.

Clark Hinkle of Green Bay and Earl (Dutch) Clark of Detroit each have a good chance to surpass the record of 79 points set by Jack Manders of Chicago in 1934. Hinkle holds the lead with 46, one more than Clark. Gaynell Tinsley, Chicago Cardinals' all-America end from L. S. U., needs to catch only seven more passes and gain 27 more yards to smash records of 34 aerials caught and 526 yards gained by Don Hutson of Green Bay last year. Tinsley now leads these departments with 28 and 500 yards, respectively.

In passing efficiency, Bob Monnett, Bucyrus Boy with Green Bay, leads with 26 completions in 50 attempts for a mark of 52 per cent, but his 480 yards gained falls far short of the 778 piled up by Sammy Baugh of Washington. Baugh has thrown 118 and completed 56 for an average of 47 per cent.

Jack Manders and Riley Smith of Washington are tied in field goals kicked with four each. Cliff Battles of Washington continued to lead ground gainers with 507 yards, and George Grosvenor of the Cardinals is second with 458.

Bellville Trims Danville, 31 to 7

Hodgemen Race to Easy Mid-State League Triumph Over Knox County Aggregation—Butler Beats Fredericktown.

BELLVILLE—Scoring their first touchdown after just one minute of play the Bellville high school gridsters rode to an easy 31 to 7 triumph over a fighting Danville squad here yesterday.

Bellville's first tally came as the result of a Danville fumble on the first play after the opening kick-off Scoles, Danville back, bobbled the ball on his own 24 and Bellville recovered. Hamilton and Balliett advanced the ball to the four from where the latter went over the double stripe for the score. Clever's attempted placement for the point failed.

Shortly after, Bellville again recovered a fumble on the visitors' 37, but it lost the ball on downs on the two.

Calling Capt. Clever into the backfield from his tackle position, the Bellville squad again advanced the ball to the one from where Clever went off-tackle into "pay dirt" for the second score of the quarter. Clever's placement went between the uprights for the point.

Hold for Downs.

Danville threatened seriously during the last remaining minutes of the first period, but the Hodge reserves held on the seven to avert a score as the quarter ended with Bellville leading its Knox foe 13-0.

Bellville threatened seriously once during the second quarter when it advanced to the half-yard line, but was unable to penetrate the strong Danville forward wall again before the half ended.

Hamilton's brilliant return of 30 yards on the second half kick-off placed the ball on the 50-yard stripe. A double lateral from Banks to Bollinger to Hamilton placed the ball on the Danville 14 and a line plunge by Balliett brought the ball to the one. Clever again pierced the Danville forward wall for the tally. Clever's attempted pass to Bollinger for the point was incomplete.

Bellville again gained an excellent scoring position when Banks intercepted a pass on Danville's 35. Hamilton, with a brilliant twisting run, went over the final marker for the score from the 10. Clever's attempted placement for the point failed.

After receiving a Bellville punt on its own 13 early in the fourth period, the Knox countians surprised the Bellville team with a double lateral, Mickley to Scoles to Lanning that resulted in a beautiful 87 yard run by Lanning down the sidelines for the fust Danville tally. Mickley drop-kicked the extra point

Adds Last Score.

Retaliating after the Danville score the Bellville gridsters made a drive to the Danville goal and placed the ball on the one and Balliett went over the last marker for the tally Balliett attempted a line plunge for the point but failed.

Neither team threatened during the remaining minutes of the last period and with the ball in Bellville's possession on their own 20 the game ended Bellville leading 31 to 7.—By Howard M. Allen.

SETS PACE

Pace-setter in the Ohio collegiate individual scoring race is Bob Bloom, above, triple-threat quarterback of the Hiram Terriers. A sophomore, the Albion, N. Y. youth has tallied 48 of the Terriers' 72 points and has already established a new all-time Hiram record for a season's scoring. Considered one of the best broken-field runners in the state, his touchdown sprints include runs of 90, 95 and 98 yards.

WILDCATS CALL WALDORF "PAPPY"; ZUPPKE DOTES ON BUILDING PLAYS

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

CHICAGO— (U.P.)—Vignettes of the Big Ten football coaches plus Notre Dame.

Bo McMillin, Indiana — hustling, hard-working, likeable, earnest. Happy except when talking about his team before a game. Family man Longest contract of any Big Ten coach with nine years to run on a ten-year contract. Hair sticks up like porcupine quills.

Bernie Bierman, Minnesota—dead on the level. Stickler for detail. Gloomy, methodical. Humorless even when his team wins by 54 to 0. Talks in a sing-song voice. Poor memory for names.

Elmer Layden, Notre Dame—diplomat. Don't let his boyish appearance fool you. He can crack down like Simon Legree when the occasion demands. Stylish but conservative dresser. Professional worrier Sticks close to fireside.

Francis Schmidt, Ohio State—top sergeant type. No tact Cracks down on players in practice. Carries notebook with him and incessantly diagrams plays Has learned much from mistakes since he came to Big Ten in 1935.

Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern—scholarly, kindly. Players call him "Pappy." Fine classical education. Weighs words in talking. Deep voice but talks in slow tempo which lessens bite.

Harry Stuhldreher, Wisconsin —smooth. Has a ready answer for everything. Never lacking in confidence. Hardest working athletic director-coach in conference. Snappiest dresser in Big Ten. Staccato voice Clever after-dinner speaker and accomplished writer.

Harry Kipke, Michigan—Tenacious. Has stood up under one of the fiercest bombardments any coach has had to take. In happier days was a congenial companion and mischievous prankster. Knows all the answers. Held in high esteem by coaching profession.

Bob Zuppke, Illinois — Strategist. Walks and talks with hands in pockets and as he warms up to subject will step up voice to shouting tones. Paints for a diversion. More imagination than any coach in profession. Dotes on concocting new plays and upsets.

Clark Shaughnessy, Chicago — Fatherly, philosophic. When he says it's so you don't have to worry about it further. One of soundest teachers of the game. Never stops trying. Can keep smiling in the face of disaster.

Mal Elward, Purdue—Mild, quiet, thorough. Was Rockne's understudy at end as player and has always played second fiddle as coach until this year when Noble Kizer's illness moved him into No. 1 spot.

Irl Tubbs, Iowa—Bald, soft-spoken, mild-mannered. Seldom raises voice. Often gets results by witty thrust or dry bit of humor. Shortest contract in Big Ten. Given one year to make good.

BUTLER HANGS UP LONE VICTORY IN LAST GAME

FREDERICKTOWN—Butler high's Mid-State league pigskin warriors registered their initial victory here Thursday by defeating Fredericktown, 7 to 0 in their final game of the season. The triumph gave Butler possession of fifth place and left the Freddies, who have yet to win a loop tilt, in last place.

Butler released its only touchdown drive early in the final chapter after the two clubs had battled through three scoreless periods.

Outside of the one scoring thrust, the Butlerites failed to get their touchdown machine to working with any regularity. In the opening stanza, the winners drove to the nine but failed to produce the punch.

Fredericktown gave the invaders a scare in the opening minute when Fullback Stevens galloped 60 yards for a score. But the play was called back because Stevens was playing without a headgear, contrary to state rules.

After this blow, the Freddies failed to penetrate inside the Butler 25 Butler registered 10 first downs to Fredericktown's seven.

Butler accounted for its touchdown on two long passes. One heave enabled the Butler club to march 30 yards to the Freddies' 27. Butler lost the oval, but recovered a fumble on the Fredericktown 24 and Ward heaved a pass to Kenny Miller, who scampered over from the four. Leiman plunged for the extra point.

Shipstad, is not yet 26-years of age. His most famous figure is his spinning act, in which he goes from one type of spin into another revolving at such great speed that he becomes a flaming tower of light and has been dubbed the "Human Top" throughout the skating world.

Old Mansfield Star On Big League Board

'Turk' Reilly Member of Committee Advising American League on Balls.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

EMMETT "Turk" Reilly, who caught for Mansfield in the good ol' days, is now in the big leagues . . . as a member of an American league advisory board on balls . . . When, and if, Chicago withdraws from the Big Ten, Nebraska can have the spot if it wants it . . . A scout of a rival major league chain labeled John Barrett, Mansfield right fielder, as the best garden prospect in the minors last summer . . . Due to the unusually large number of pheasants, the Ohio season will be extended two days—Nov. 15-27. . . . Either the Boston Bees or Brooklyn Dodgers will help Marion operate in the Ohio State league next summer . . . And Fremont is just wasting a lot of time trying to obtain an affiliation with the Yankees, we understand.

Classy is the word to describe the Yuncker Sports' new bowling attire. The name Yuncker is spelled out on the black ties. Nifty, to say the least . . . . The Fremont sports writer who is trying to make something out of the fact that the Red Sox played fewer games than any Ohio State league rival last summer except Tiffin is causing less excitement than he expected. Perhaps he doesn't know that the Red Sox played all but a couple of their home games. And perhaps he doesn't know that their rivals refused to re-schedule the out-of-town games as they sought to strengthen their own positions in the race.

* * *

JIMMY MILLER, father of Jim Miller, Ohio State halfback, was one of the heavy backers of the old Shelby Blues. Remember? That was a football team, too. Pete Stinchcomb, Ohio All-American, was one of the Blues' stars.

Bucyrus Club Wins Finale

BUCYRUS — Bucyrus Redmen won their last game of the season on Lane street field last night, defeating Columbus Central, 19-13 in a game devoted almost to forward passes.

Each of the five touchdowns were made by passes. Wert for Bucyrus caught two passes by Bower for two of the Redmen scores and the other was made on a pass from Wert to Souders.

Bowshire, half on the visitors' team, made several spectacular passes, but the team did not get into its stride until the third quarter when it made its first score. The other touchdown was made early in the fourth quarter.

BEATS MIDGET WOLGAST

PHILADELPHIA—Tommy Cross, 135, Philadelphia, outpointed Midget Wolgast, 140, Philadelphia, (10).
